Beginning his second year as principal, Dr. Donald Ring promotes the indian spirit for the Silver Celebration of the school.

When Niles West was built, no one ever anticipated the use of railings in this fashion! Senior Jim Kobyleski executes a perfect "V" which scores a perfect "10."

25 Years

At last I open my iron glass doors,
For the shouting voices I hear approach.
Yet, though it seems but a moment just passed,
I sense their excitement is not first or last.
For 25 years have passed since my youth,
And thousands of freshmen have entered my coop.
They seem not to notice the minutes go by Emerging as seniors in such a short time.
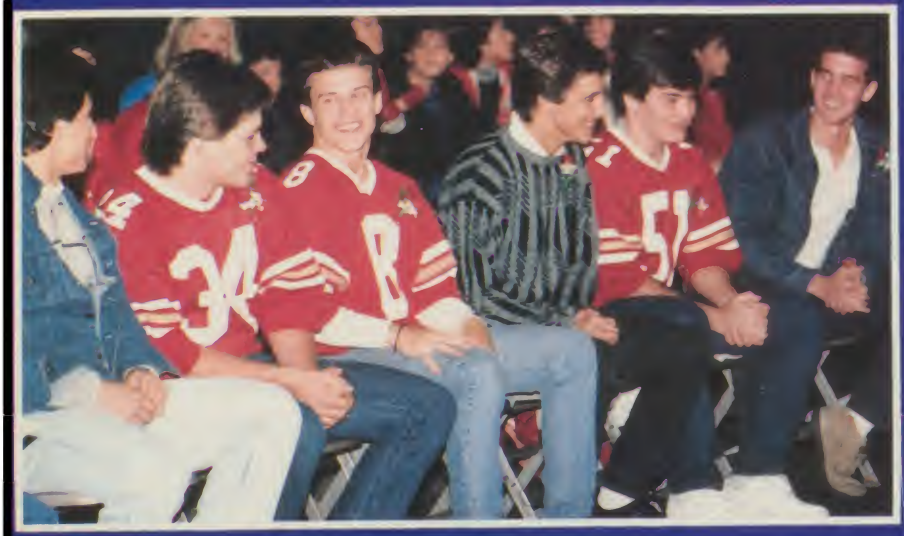
A constant reminder of my diminishing adolescence.

Dress up time for Halloween proves to be a good time youngsters. This little "witch" hardly seems wicked.

Susan Ockleman lolls around waiting for something exciting to happen. In the meantime, Susan just enjoys the free time.

No signs of senioritis yet for Ted Georgas! Ted keeps himself busy with an interesting magazine during his free period.



A happy bunch of runners sit in front of the school in honor of being chosen on Homecoming court. One of these lucky six was announced to be the king.

OF CELEBRATION!

Junior Elliott Baretz has a good eye for what's going on at school. Elliott will make sure this pentax camera lense will find all the good looking girls!

One of the highlights of all pom-pon routines is the kick-line. The senior pom-pon girls show their stuff.

POW!! Junior Dan Carver takes a shot and misses the Spectrum photographer.

IT ALL HAPPENED ON MIKE BASRAK FIELD

Indian quarterback seniors, Rick Maybrun, receives the snap and decides to run the ball down field by himself.

1985-1986 was definitely the year of football for Chicago and although our own team went 3-6 it hasn't always been that way. In the past twenty-five years we have definitely had some winning teams. Here are the records of the Niles West football team for the last quarter of a decade.

1985-3 wins 6 losses
1984-3 wins 6 losses
1983-2 wins 6 losses
1982-2 wins 7 losses
1981-7 wins 3 losses
1980-6 wins 3 losses
1979-3 wins 6 losses
1978-no record
1977-6 wins 3 losses
1976-4 wins 5 losses
1975-6 wins 1 loss 2 ties
1974-7 wins 1 loss
1973-6 wins 2 losses
1972-9 wins 0 losses
1971-6 wins 2 losses
1970-5 wins 4 losses
1969-no record
1968-5 wins 3 losses
1967-7 wins 1 loss
1966-5 wins 3 losses
1965-3 wins 8 losses
1964-4 wins 4 losses
1963-5 wins 3 losses
1962-7 wins 1 loss

THE "CLASSIEST" HIGH SCHOOL

Niles West, what a school! It has certain uniqueness to it. I suppose you can say it has a style all its own. But when you actually think about it, it's the students and teachers that make West the extraordinary school it is. Without them, who would make arrangements for dances or plan activities and fundraisers? Who would see to it that the year is a challenging and prosperous one, yet also fun and exciting?

Looking back at some of the many memorable events that made Niles West the "classiest" high school, we can smile at all the good times we had and shared with others. Who could forget Friday Night Bashes, senior Hawaiin Day, the Niles West Gong Show, Homecoming week contests, and the faculty Christmas carol performance? These and many others added on to West's description of "classy."

Then, of course, there are certain features found only in Niles West that add a special touch of style to the school. The pictures found in the hallway remind us of Indian victories, special events, and wild 'n' crazy times. The "seniors only" section of the cafeteria, the electrical message board, and, of course, the pink hallways are sights to be seen in no other school.

Last, but never least, the athletes, cheerleades, pom-pon girls, Midnight Riders and Indian mascot. They're creative, outgoing, and most of all, they keep that Indian spirit soaring! So you see, no matter how you look at it, Niles West is, and always will be, the "classiest" high school!

-Estelle Nikolakakis '89

Sophomore Joe Barba casually sings the tunes from the hit, "Celebration." Both music and acting in the production proved to be most entertaining.

A Tarnished Image

Many of us have a simple answer to taking a test we did not study for. We call it cheating. Although everyone knows that cheating gets us nowhere, students still feel it is the only way to achieve a good grade in class. Now-a-days, college is very grade conscious. In order to even be considered for admission, students have to have a good class rank which directly reflects that student's grades. Also, some parents stress very heavily the importance of achievement. Older brothers and older sisters have always done "A" work, therefore, the youngest should follow in the exact footsteps. The result could prove to be disastrous for the student's learning habits, by continuously cheating himself.

There are many ways to cheat in class. Students draw up cheat sheets, or even put these cheat sheets on their pocket calculators. Girls utilize their long finger nails for easily available answers, and even write on their legs while wearing a mini skirt. Enevitably, these cheaters will get caught when taking a peak at the helpful "hints" they appear to be using.

Unfortunately, cheating does not stop at the high school level. Colleg fraternities or dormatories have a useful device called a test file. This file is comprised of tests which are usually in use that semester; they are stolen or copied.

Cheaters are definately not helping themselves or those around them. One last thought for those who make cheating a regular practice; how would you like to be on an operation table, not knowing that your surgeon cheated on his MEDICAL EXAM?

Like brother, like brother. Sophomore Greg Rudin gives fellow Junior Eric Bataller a life to the door.

Seniors have the free time to chat about current happenings around school. Michelle Goldberg finds something particularly funny to smile about.

Senior Julia Goldin performs perfectly during the Celebration performance. Goldin is actively involved in the music department.

We often take these women for granted. Our cafeteria staff counts the days earnings from the vending machines.

Seniors

Senior year is a time to say your last goodbyes, and to try and treasure life-long friendships. The senior class sponsored events such as battle of the bands, and bake sales. Seniors Elke Boies and Judy DeAcetis represent themselves well as they sit in as Student Union and Senate members. Both clubs tried to boost school spirit, and activities.

Concentration on future plans Senior Steve Hester spends his free time constructively in the Annex. During free time many students use the Annex to study, read or 'veg-out'.

Seniors Judy Mercado and Ann Chutivanich look over the new Josten's selection. Class rings are very important high school souveneirs.

LETS HEAR IT FOR SENIOR SPIRIT

SENIORS! SENIORS! The words echoed from the Senior bleachers at the pep assembly. The class of '86 has finally reached the top and they're proud. Finally the oldest in the school, seniors feel their power and display their spirit in cheers, clothes, and activities.

At assemblies there is no hesitation from the seniors to yell, clap, and be the loudest, rowdiest group in the school. "Although I've never been able to sit in the senior section due to participating in the band, I've always noticed the seniors have the most spirit," said senior Jill Zabo. The bleachers resound with cheers of pride for the Indians. Our school mascot runs around the gym floor screaming Indian (and of course senior) power during her cheers. "Representing the school as the mascot is fun and exciting. It's a great experience being part of the spirit," said Judy Asher, senior mascot.

The colors red and white can be seen on jackets, hats, shirts, and almost anything else worn around Niles West. Though everyone, including underclassmen, wear these colors, seniors glorify them. It is not unusual to see spirited seniors walking through the halls with NW written on their faces in red and white during a big event. Everything from clothes to red and white polished fingernails demonstrate the seniors' Indian spirit.

There are special activities or traditions the seniors take part in. Sitting at the senior tables in the cafeteria has become a status symbol over the years. Senior Paulette Arvanitis said, "Sitting at the senior tables makes you feel like the oldest and no. 1. It seems like people look up to you." Though seniors have school spirit, they also have class spirit. They stick together in the cafeteria, on the bleachers, and on the field during graduation.

Many seniors will soon be in college working their way up from little freshmen to big seniors once again, but for now they are the big seniors. They know it, and it shows.

IF I WERE TEACHER

Seniors, as well as other students, can often be heard complaining about tests, homework, and the teachers that give them but what would they do if they were ... teachers? When put to the test, seniors answered:
If I were a teacher I would ...
"Never give tests on Monday but on Friday."
Michelle Burdeen
"Never teach gym!"
Sonia Bychkov
"Want my own personal marker board."
Andy Mills
"Never go on strike!"
Paula Krone
"Not be in it for the money."
Sheryl Shimanovsky
"Never wear plaid pants that clashed with a checkered tie."

SENIOR HIDEAWAY

Have you ever felt unwanted, out of place, or just plain lost? If you have recently then you probably are not a senior at Niles West. The seniors at West don't have that problem because they know that from the first day of school until graduation there will be a place for them where no freshmen, sophomores, or juniors are, a place where they can kick back and relax, a place where all their friends will be. That is, the senior tables in the cafeteria. These tables are on "reserve" for seniors only from September Until June and no one except a senior would dare sit there. These tables are used during the day for the various lunch mods and also after school when getting together. These tables aren't just for eating lunch but for talking with friends, studying, or just sitting back, putting your feet up and saying, "I belong. I'm a senior!"

"Seniors! Seniors!" shot the class of '86 as they show their school Spirit in the Homecoming pep assembly.

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF . . .

Although no one really thinks about it, there are many differences between a freshman's school day and a senior's school day. Differences not only with the classes they take but with the way they actually live the day. Here are some examples:

Freshman Day

1. Starts early (5:30 or 6:00)
2. Gets to bus stop (6:45)
3. Gets to homeroom (7:25)
4. Carries a minimum of five books all day.
5. Has one lunch with no one he knows.
6. No study halls (too many classes)
7. Starts homework at 2:45
8. Prepares for tomorrow before ending today.

Senior Day

1. Starts later (6:30 or 7:00)
2. Backs car out of driveway (7:20)
3. Gets to homeroom (7:35)
4. Carries a maximum of one.
5. Has two or three lunches with every one he knows.
6. Three study halls (not enough classes)
7. Starts homework at 10:45
8. Prepares?

Telling the student body how to get more involved is Student Union President Jennifer Holt. Student Union is in charge of planning Homecoming, Turnabout, and many other student activities.

YOU LOOK MARVELOUS!

It seems like everyone is into fitness these days. New health clubs, videos, and clothes are showing up everywhere. Healthy bodies are what's in style in the '80's and people are getting involved.

Health clubs have been around for many years but it wasn't until recently that they became so popular. Many students at Niles West are members of the North Shore Club, East Bank Club, and various Chicago health clubs. "After working out at the club I feel good about myself and energized," said junior Evelina Stipisic. Commericals can be seen on television showing fit popular stars such as Heather Locklear and Cher keeping in shape at local clubs. Because of the popularity and facilities available, many clubs have high membership prices. For people who have the money and will to work, health clubs have become a popular attraction.

Some people don't attend clubs but work out at home instead. Aerobics videotapes have become a big part of the home workout. Jane Fonda is one of the many people who has tapes and books available in stores. The tapes usually run around an hour and work your body by movement rather than by machine. Senior Cindi Moss stated, "Aerobics is like dancing and exercising at the same time. It's a lot of fun." At first aerobics was considered a girls' sport but now men are also involved. There is a co-ed class available in the P.E. department at Niles West.

The fitness craze has hit our clothing stores, too. Years ago the big thing was designer jeans, today it is workout clothes. Sweat pants and tops are worn to school, out to lunch, and, of course, to work out. "Sweats are very comfortable to wear around school and they are usually pretty inexpensive," said junior Brad Jones. Even the style of the workout clothes has changed. It used to be that a plain body suit or a shorts outfit was fine. Now if you're part of a club or class, designer clothes are a must. Detailed print designs and exciting wild colors are the style on body suits and sweats today.

Nobody knows if the fitness craze will last or not, but for right now it's here and big. As Billy Crystal (or should I say Fernando?) would say, "It doesn't matter if you feel good as long as you look good because YOU LOOK MARVELOUS!"

Students 'Gets that Pepsi feeling' during free mods. Most students meet in the cafeteria during free mods to 'Share a Coke and a smile.'

Taking advice from friends is Senior Nadine Hugmeyer. Many Seniors agree that friends made in the last four years will be friends for life.

Startled by her appearance is Senior Kathy Sokalski. For many Seniors glancing in the mirror can be a lifetime trauma.

MONEY!!

During a student's stay in high school, one object is of the utmost need. MONEY!! There are two ways a student can obtain this much desired need. They can either turn to a life of crime, or get a job. The latter seems to be the more popular choice among the students here at Niles West.

Many fields are open to students. Department stores are popular places to work. McDades and Courtesy Home Center both employ many Niles West Students. Their wages are adequate, but they work there for special discounts, or so they say.

Grocery stores are also popular places of employment. Students pack bags, or stock shelves at Jewel and Dominicks, looking for free handouts. They keep in mind their life-long goal, to work a check-out counter.

But how could we forget, the most popular field of all, the fine chefs. The people who work at fast food restaurants. These fine and talented people can prepare a cheeseburger, small fries, and a medium Coke in three minutes flat. It seems as if at every McDonald, Burger King, or Wendy's, a familiar face is preparing your meal.

FROM BEGINNING TO END

Ah, senior status! For the class of 1986, it marked a final year of learning at West. Learning not only academically, but in many other areas as well. Senior year dispelled many naive beliefs and replaced them with knowledge which freshmen would be wise to heed.

Freshmen Believe ... but ...	Seniors Know
Staying home is good for the complexion.	Freshmen have acne anyway.
G.E.E.K. is a new computer course at school.	It's something named for underclassmen.
Curfew is when you go home.	It's when you go out
In riding at the front of the bus.	It's better to take the car.
In waiting in line.	You go to McDonalds.
A party is ten. It should be less filling!	A party is 100.
Saturday detention is missing cartoons.	It tastes great!
Study Halls are just that.	It's a reason to get up before 12:00 noon
Seniors are intimidating.	They're social rap sessions.
	They're right

LOOKING BACK

Can you remember back to that time long ago when Mom said, "It's time to go," and you asked, puzzled, "Where?" It didn't take long to find yourself in a hard wooden chair, writing and reciting you ABC's. You experienced your first major problem that day, missing "Captain Kangaroo" and "Mr. Rogers" but more serious changes were yet to come.

Mrs. Biology reminded you that lightning bugs commonly died in oxygen-starved jars and that for this reason, you received a "check" instead of a "plus". You also learned that your "Black Cauldron" book report could have been written without reading the book, and that braces made speech class impossible.

The lessons never stopped, even when you were old enough for high school. You soon found out that Niles West was a lot larger than your good old junior high, that room 138 (which you walked into that first day freshmen year) wasn't your English class after all but a study hall, that math and "A's" didn't necessarily correspond, and that term papers needed to be started a little earlier than 9 o'clock the night before they were due.

IN THE PAST FOUR YEARS WE'VE LEARNED THAT:

Studying in the sun are seniors Michael Reinhardt and Craig Brabec. Study halls are a great place to get a tan.

Midnight means three more hours of homework.
Homeroom is an optional class.
Looking nice for school means sweats and combed hair.
Taking the bus only happens when the car breaks down.
The only living thing in the cafeteria is the food.
There is no maximum speed limit for the hallways.
The "rag" is not something you wash with.
A "modified" excuse means Madison for the weekend.
Homework assignments are only something to fill up the Chandler's and lastly . . .

Graduation is where the class of 1986 takes their hats off to everyone.

PAISLEY HITS THE '80's

Each year there is a new fashion that works its way into the hallways and classrooms. In years past it has been rhinestone jewelry, Swatch watches, Guess jeans, and spiked belts. For the "with it" student, the latest craze was paisley prints.

Paisley first hit the fashion scene during the psychedelic sixties and then it slowly died down with the change in times. Now, twenty years later, we are seeing it again in various colors and styles.

Girls and guys alike showed off this new fashion from head to toe. They modeled anything from sweaters, pants, blouses, socks, and even watches containing the paisley print. Many people even wore a paisley shirt and pants with a different paisley pattern just to get into the swing of things.

Some people, however, were with the anti-paisley fad. They found it loud and obnoxious and refused to wear it. Many people complained of headaches from the bright colors mixed with so much print. These people had to keep their eyes closed just to avoid the encounter of a fellow classmate wearing paisley.

Whoever said that history and fashion repeats itself was right because as we looked down our very own hallways, we saw an old fad being displayed in a brand new way. Whether you find it attractive or not, paisley has hit the eighties.

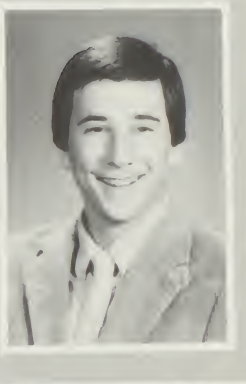
SENIORS WHO ACT LIKE FRESHMEN

Programming her new assignment into the computer is senior Myra Khan. There are two computer labs located in the school.

You see it all the time. In the halls in the gym, in the cafeteria. You're so used to it that you probably don't even notice it. What is this strange quirk of human behavior? Seniors who act like freshmen. Here are a few things our senior-freshmen did this year:

-Took the wrong bus home
-Went to the wrong class
-Came to class early
-Ate in the cafeteria duing lunch
-Forgot their locker combinations
-Fell down the stairs
-Fell up the stairs
-Studied for finals ..... six weeks early
-Came to school on a day off

If you found yourself doing any of these things don't feel too bad, there were many other senior-freshmen doing the same exact things.



Coming up with a good conclusion for a biology lab is not an easy task to accomplish. Here seniors Garrett Feinberg and Jon Lisco debate on how to write out their conclusion.

EARLY SENIORITIS

What is the newest epidemic to invade Niles West and other high schools throughout the country? Early Senioritis! Senioritis is defined in non-medical terms as total laziness and apathy towards school. Senioritis among upperclassmen is common and widespread. There is no cure for this disease, but it seems to disappear for seniors in June. As for the underclassmen they must wait until they graduate before any relief is in sight. There are some symptoms for Early Senioritis which include: Making a friend go to McDonald's to get you a Big Mac and fries instead of eating the school food; going to a party the night before a test thinking that there is always homeroom to study; counting the number of days until graduation; and, pressing the snooze button on your alarm time after time in the morning. So if you freshmen, sophomores, and juniors think you have this very contagious disease you should call the Early Senioritis hotline at I-A-M-L-A-Z-Y, and just hope that it's not too late.

Collecting her thoughts for the day senior Judy Zemsky gets ready for her next class.

THE HEAT IS ON!

Pressure is one of the biggest problems that face students at Niles West, even seniors. It may seem that seniors have no pressure or problems by the wild, out-going way they conduct themselves during the year, but they do. The pressure of the last three years are corked up inside them ready to explode at any minute. Seniors go through many headaches, explanations to the dean, teachers, texts, and Monday mornings. Senior year is no different. However all seniors agree that the biggest pressure is what they will be doing after high school. Pressure of jobs and colleges, where to go, and what to do add to the stress of senior year.

If you happen to see a senior yelling, ripping, or growling in school, don't worry, he is just trying to relieve some past pressure to make room for the new pressure to come.

Seniors Jamie Boton and Heather Ross brainstorm on a topic for a good English essay. Students agree that it's easier to brainstorm with a friend.

I COULD TELL HE WAS A FRESHMAN BECAUSE . . .

He had his Niles West map with him everywhere,

He carried his books with him the whole day,

His locker card was taped to his locker,

He showed his bus pass to the driver every day,

His gym clothes didn't have any rips,

He always sat in the seat behind the bus driver and asked, "Where are the seat belts?"

He always sat "three in a seat" on the bus even when there were empty seats in the back, guarded by seniors,

He always laughed at the teacher's jokes,

He was the only one who waved back to Dr. Ring.

SENIOR HANGOUTS

Weekends and after school, seniors like to get together and show their spirit. Whether before a movie or after a big home game, before practice starts or after a party, seniors like to "hangout."

The most popular place to meet continued to be Jack's Restaurant on Touhy. Jack's, open 24 hours a day, was very accomodating to many late night seniors. Although the managers of Jack's were not always thrilled to see hoards of seniors gathering around the tables to munch on late night snacks and gossip about late night festivities, it never stopped the class of '86.

Another big attraction was the student parking lot. After athletic events, seniors headed to the lot and made their own fun. Car radios blasted as the seniors showed their spirit.

When Jack's was too crowded and the parking lot too cold, seniors traveled to McDonald's on Dempster or the newly built one on Niles Center Road.

The 7-11 on Gross Point Road and Lincoln Avenue was always crowded with seniors who needed a light munch. After school and during the school day, seniors purchased slurpees, Snickers and other junk food. In this case, when it comes to snacking, calories just don't matter.

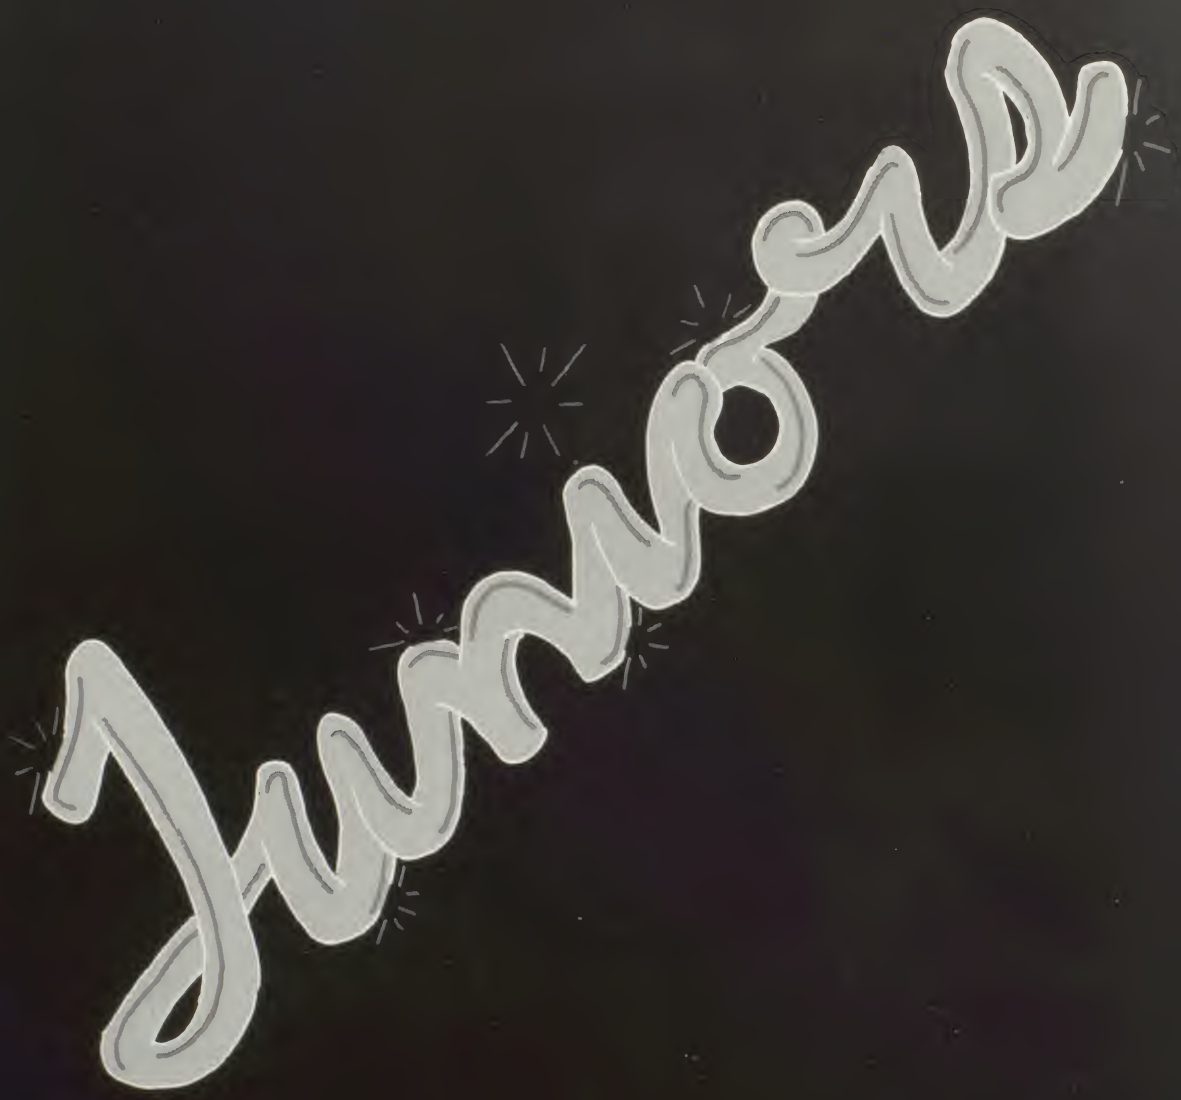
GOODBYE

Today I close my locker
For the very last time
Leaving my books
And past learning behind.
Though "goodbye" has always been for me
The hardest thing to say
My memories of these four years
I'll cherish more each day.

Today I shall see faces
And hear voices one last time
Which in some way,
Whether good or bad,
I've grown to recognize.
And though "goodbye" has always been
The hardest thing to say
My memories of these four years
Will never go away.

Senior Michelle Goldberg shows her true feelings of senior Kieth Kreifer's latest remark. Seniors often gather around the "Senior Table" to rap.

Reading ahead is senior Harold Pine. His Ap Biology class proves to be very challenging.



Juniors

Junior year is a trial and error year to find out what kind of academic potential one has. Juniors also have the responsibility of living up to the expectations of an upper classman. Juniors also celebrate the anticipation of becoming a senior! Above, Coach George Galla seems to have a hold on things while junior Paul Kasprak thinks of his next move.

STYLISH DAYS

Stylish days meant big, bold, layered, and diverse. Western shirts were at home on the range and at Niles West, while ascending to the peaks climbed high tops and Reeboks. For the more delicate, gardens of flowers showered across oversized shirts, and stirrups danced onto center stage. Mixed and matched were patterns, plaids, and paisleys galore, even equestrian spirit jumped high. Baroque jewelry played a must as an accessory. For those who just wanted to be comfortable, sweats were high on the list. Looking like everyone else was not the key to style, being yourself and having fun was. If climbing and jumping weren't exactly up your alley, with the right clothes, no one could tell the difference.

WHAT IS A JUNIOR?

A junior is someone who has no time to do everything and all the time in the world to do nothing.

A junior takes his life one test at a time.

A junior walks with his head high even if his grades are low.

A junior knows the score and will gladly inform anyone who doesn't.

A junior hates his title but likes his position.

A junior only takes "no" for an answer if he is asking whether or not something was his fault.

A junior knows between right and wrong, which explains his behavior at school functions.

A junior is what I am proud to call myself.

MONDAY MORNING MISTAKES

Monday. The worst day of the week where EVERYTHING seems to go wrong! What could be worse? After a fun and relaxing weekend, you awake at 5:30 in the morning to find that you must return to another long troublesome week of school. Stumbling out of your house, still half asleep, you realize that it's freezing outside and you forgot to bring a jacket. As you wait impatiently for the bus, which is late once again, you think of how much more comfortable you'd be lying in your warm cozy bed. Finally arriving at school, you dash to homeroom hoping that you won't be late.

The whole day goes wrong! You flunk an important English test, forget your math homework at home, trip and fall while trying to get through the crowded hallways, and then, to top it all off, you drop a glass of fruit punch all over your brand new sweater during lunch. Storming out of the cafeteria, angry and discouraged, you look down to see that you have accidentially torn your favorite pair of jeans. "What a day," you say to yourself, almost in tears, "I can't wait until Friday!"

WEST, NILES WEST

I walked into the building with unusual apprehension. Here it was, summer, and I was actually about to enter that forbiding fortress of education they call West, Niles West. I made my way down the twisting and turning corridors. Dare I go further? I didn't like the idea, but I knew I must press on. Down the hallway, what's that? A sign? No, not just a sign, an arrow pointing left. I knew I was in business. A final left, then right; I had reached my destination.

I casually slipped into the crowded room unnoticed, and proceeded to get in line. What must have only been forty-five minutes seemed like forever. I patiently waited in line; my arms ever-tiring from the strain of textbooks. Finally one person to go until my turn.

My mission was to return my textbooks from the previous school year, pick up new ones to carry me through the upcoming year, and still be able to enjoy the week or so of vacation that was remaining. Sure, it sounded easy enough, but I couldn't help wincing in pain each time I thought of the notice demanding $96.13 that had interrupted my summer vacation.

My turn at last! My history book quietly slipped across the counter, the gleaming binding hiding the "abused" interior. I calmly explained how the previous owner of my math book must have filled in the answers, and how of course my German book was missing pages in the back when I got it. I was done. No, wait a minute, my "Steps to Better Writing" wasn't accounted for. My suggestion that it was because I never received it was in vain, and I put down $6.00 on the counter. It could have been worse, I suppose.

I quickly picked up my books for the upcoming year, and fled as fast as I could from the textbook center and that accursed fortress of learning they call West, Niles West.

THE GRADE RUSH

It's the last week of the six-week marking period and you still have to make up three homework assignments and two tests. You seem to be spending all the time that you used to talk in the cafeteria in the library. Actually, it seems that everybody is doing the same thing because there are very few seats open in the library. On top of the make-up work you have five tests Friday on the material covering the whole six weeks.

You start coming earlier and leaving later, to study and to do your homework. All you can think about is your freedom on Friday at exactly 2:26 p.m. After you finish your last test on Friday, your teacher makes the announcement that the term paper, which was assigned when you were absent, is due on Monday. So instead of having a relaxing and fun-filled weekend you're once again stuck in the monotonous world of school.

FRIENDSHIPS

Going back to school was not the same experience for all students at West. For most of us, it meant seeing all those friends you promised to see over the summer but somehow never did, hitting the books again, studying for tests, and getting back into shape plus a whole lot more. For the freshmen though it was quite different. Going to high school was a new and unique experience, yet scary. It meant meeting new people, seeing old faces, hoping that you looked right. It also meant getting used to a bigger school, with bigger hallways, and bigger people. It took a while to get into the beat of things but gradually everything fell right into place, and the new faces were now friends.

FROSH-SOPH MIXER PROVES POPULAR

As the D.J. played the hottest hits, freshmen and sophomores got themselves out on the dance floor to prove that dancing is what they do best!

This years Mixer, held in the cafeteria on September 27, turned out to be a very popular event among underclassmen. The music ranged from hard rock to new wave, and even some slow tunes. It gave freshmen and sophomores a chance to meet new people, dance, and have a great time.

Colorful decorations added life and creativity to the dance. Many added their own touch by wearing togas.

In general, the Frosh-Soph Mixer turned out to be a total success! The crowd was wild and lively and seemed to be having a terrific time. That's the spirit of '88 and '89!

HANGOUTS

As you walk through the hallways at West, whether in the morning, during your free time, or even between passing periods, you probably have noticed the same faces in the same places at the same time. It's what students call their "Hangouts." To most it's more than just a hangout. It's a place to see those friends you never see the rest of the day. Many people exchange gossip, hear the latest on the favorite sports team, see what's happening around school or just comparing notes from biology class. These hangouts might be located in the cafeteria at a certain table, the band or pool hallway, or just at somebody's locker. A hangout is great to have because you know you will see some faces; not the strangers in a crowd. So don't just sit, hangout somewhere!

FIRE DRILLS: ARE THEY NECESSARY?

Fire drills are necessary even though they are disruptive to the classes in session. Students and faculty should know how to exit the building quickly, yet safely, in case of an actual fire. Since fire drills are practiced, the students know where to go, and what to do, so that in a real fire they would be less likely to panic.

Classes are disrupted by fire drills. A student may be taking a test or listening to a lecture. This can be very upsetting to a teacher. When all things are considered, however, it is important to know something that can save your life.

THE HEAT IS ON

During the first few weeks of school, everyone suffered from a lot of problems, classes, teachers, tests and the heat. It was difficult listening to the teacher or doing your homework with all of the heat and sweat dripping down your back. If you looked into certain classes you would probably some people waving their paper fans, (which was once their homework), hoping that the heat would go away. Unfortunately it didn't happen that way. Here are just a few ways on how some students fought the heat . . .

"I just didn't think about it."

Estelle Nikolakakis 89'

"I came to school in my swimming trunks"

Alan Dassow 86'

"I went outside during my free time"

Jenny Suess 87'

"I went to morning swim practice."

Mary Theodore 88'

Brian Gut 88'

"I wore as little clothes as possible."

Who knows maybe next year when the heat is on you might use one of these suggestions. Meanwhile, keep cool!

DECORATING LOCKERS

When you walk down the halls at school, have you sometimes noticed the cardboard cards that are taped to some of the lockers? When first seen from afar, you wonder, what's going on! Then you take a closer look and see the "HAPPY BIRTHDAY" or "SWEET SIXTEEN". The decorating of lockers is a tradition for birthdays at Niles West. Friends of the birthday person get together and make a card. It could be plain white, or fluorescent yellow and pink. Cards might be fancy with newspaper clippings, balloons, streamers or just a simple "HAPPY BIRTHDAY". Then, friends of the birthday person get together and sign it. It makes a person's birthday more special. In this way you can show your friends you really care.

Freshmen

It is a new environment that has lots to offer, and many new people to meet. For many Freshmen, the first year of high school could be traumatic to the point of fear and tears. For the most part, all freshmen discover that the year is exciting, and that high school has more to offer than grammar school. Freshman Andy Costello crafts his project in order to achieve a "master-piece."

FRESHMEN ENJOY "GET INVOLVED" ASSEMBLY

On September 10, almost 500 freshmen yelled and cheered as Miss Stewart welcomed the Class of '89 to Niles West. During the assembly, freshmen were addressed by Mark Poulakidas, President of the Senior Class, and by Benji Malkin, President of the Sophomore Class, as well as other members of the faculty and staff. As a result of these speeches, freshmen learned about the many clubs, teams, and privileges available at Niles West.

Following the speakers, Ms. Howell, Mr. Erickson, and Mr. Kupferberg performed in a comedy skit in which they impersonated three trouble-making freshmen facing the consequences of detention. Acting out the part of the dean was senior Paul Bouboutsis.

All in all, the assembly turned out to be enjoyable for most freshmen. Learning to adjust to a new school is never easy, but thanks to the help of fellow students and staff, freshmen understood what was expected of them, and who they could turn to for help.

PINK WALLS

When you think of the color pink, what do you usually think of? Pink bedrooms, a pink prom dress, pink hair-ribbons, pink lollipops! You don't usually think of school walls, do you? Well, last summer the school decided to paint our walls pink! Were they painted to cheer up our long and gloomy days here, or to make us feel more at home? Or maybe they did it so we could have yet another reason to hate school? Who knows. Here are some opinions expressed by West students . . .

"I think the pink walls are rather tacky but, in a way, they sort of liven up the hallways."

Dawn Jacobs

"The pink walls bring a smile to my face!"

Jeannine Dimodica

"It was stupid not to make them red or white."

Wendy Martin

"They're different, so I like them."

Karen Pintz

"I think they're swell."

Noel Garfinkel

"I totally love them!! They remind me of my bedroom!"

Stacy Stratigakes

"I think the pink walls are ugly, but now I really don't notice the color."

Stephanie Pritcker

"The Pepto-Bismol walls are ugly!"

Larry Mills

"You don't really notice the walls."

Frank Brodsky

BETTER OFF DEAD!!

Arriving at the first class of the day, you sit down and relax until the bell rings. The teacher walks in with a stack of papers in her hand, but you think nothing of it until she tells everyone to clear their desks. Everyone realizes this is a "pop" quiz. Not getting nervous because you read the chapter last night, you take the paper from the person ahead, look at the test, and realize you read the wrong chapter. You didn't have the faintest idea of any of the answers.

Moving on to the next class you are excited because you'll receive a test you took and thought every answer was right. Taking notes on a lecture the whole period, all you can think about is the test. Two minutes before the bell the test was returned and on the top you see an "F". Now all you can think about is a way to get out of the rest of your classes and go home, but it is impossible because you have a huge math test and that's your last class of the day.

You study for the math test every chance you get throughout the day, and by the time math class comes around you know everything you need to know. Walking into the math room you spot a sub who announces that there will be no test. Instead, you will have it next week. At this point you think nothing worse can happen to you that day until you are walking around the corner and bump into a dean. You knock him down and he claims you did it on purpose and gives you a Saturday.

By then you were ready to go home, go to sleep, and about a half hour later the annoying sound from your alarm goes off again. Thinking you must have set it at the wrong time you look at the clock and see 5:30 A.M. You get up and look in your parent's room. They are both there. The question is, was it a dream or was it real?

FREAK SHOW

On Friday nights many Niles West students went to see the "Rocky Horror Picture Show." What's was so great about it? Here's what some of your fellow students said:

"Some movies you laugh with, "Rocky Horror" you laugh at."

Tom Malkin '87

"It's a happening. Before the show the audience goes on stage and acts the movie out."

Marc Hamid '87

"I love the audience participation."

Rob Munic '88

"Great soundtrack."

Greg Rudin '88

For every line in the movie the audience yelled back several lines to the screen(cutting the line up.) For example, when the narrator came out, the audience yelled out, "Where's your neck." During the rain storm the audience shot water at each other and put a newspaper over their heads for protection. During the wedding scene the audience had a rice fight. When the professor said the line, "Great Scotts," the audience threw rolls of toilet paper." The Rocky Horror Picture Show" was presented at Evanston and Old Orchard Theaters.

Freshman Andrea Schwartz overhears a joke being told in class. Telling jokes helps to break the monotony of the typical classroom atmosphere.

BECAUSE . . .

Everyone at sometime has had to think fast when the teacher asked that dreaded question, "Why are you late?" The problem with the "usual" excuses are that nobody believes them. So next time you're in that bind, pick a category and try one of these:

JOCK-I was in the bathroom and my zipper got stuck.

POPULAR PERSON-I was reading my social engagement book and didn't hear the bell.

MUSICIAN-My lips got stuck in my tuba.

FRESHMAN-I couldn't get my locker open.

INTELLECTUAL-I had to wait until channel II was off the air.

NERD-Someone locked me in my locker.

TEACHER-My finger was caught in the Xerox machine.

SENIOR-Who cares?

CARTOON FAVORITES

If you were to ask Niles West students what their favorite food, rock group, or song was, you'd get a great variety of answers. Everybody has an opinion of their own. So when students were asked who their favorite cartoon characters were and why they picked these characters, the responses were original and rather amusing. Here are some of them . .

My favorite cartoon character is:

"Heman, because he reminds me of me."
-Helen Georgakopoulos '86

"Garfield, because he's so funny and original."
-Susan Bezanes '89

"Fred Flintstone, because he's fat, obnoxious, and eats a lot."

SWATCHES GALORE

One of the newest and hottest looks among guys and girls at Niles West are the Swatch quartzes. Not only do these Swiss watches provide perfect timing, but they are also a very fashionable and "in look." They come in a numerous amounts of colors and sizes including everything from a plain black or grey, to plaid and paisley. Swatches have become a very popular accessory and are worn by just about everyone. "I think that they're cool because they're original and different from most watches." commented freshman Ivy Kron. So, if you're not a Swatch owner, then do as the advertisement says and "Switch to Swatch!"

SWEET OR NOT SO SWEET DREAMS

Did you ever have a day that you thought was a nightmare, yet was real? The day begins at 5:30 A.M. with that dreaded buzzing of your alarm clock. Your first reaction to the annoying sound is to press the snooze button, but on this particular day instead of pressing that button your sub-conscious tells you to turn it off. After what you thought was five minutes, you open your eyes, look at the clock to see if you have a little more time, and see that is is 7:00 A.M.

At this point you jump out of bed and head for the bathroom, thinking about how after school you can come home and sleep. Suddenly you remember that you have a detention for cutting the last class the day before. You're not worried that you missed the bus already, because you figure that mom can drive you before she goes to work. You peek into her room to ask her and nobody's there. All you see is a note saying that she had to leave early and she hopes you have a good day. All ready to leave at 7:20 A.M. you start an eight mile hike.

You arrive at school by 7:35 A.M., but while running up the stairs all your books and papers fall throughout the stairwell. After collecting all the papers it is 7:38 A.M. You finally get to homeroom 45 seconds before the class is dismissed and explain everything to the teacher. In return you get a referral with the statement, "This was your second time."

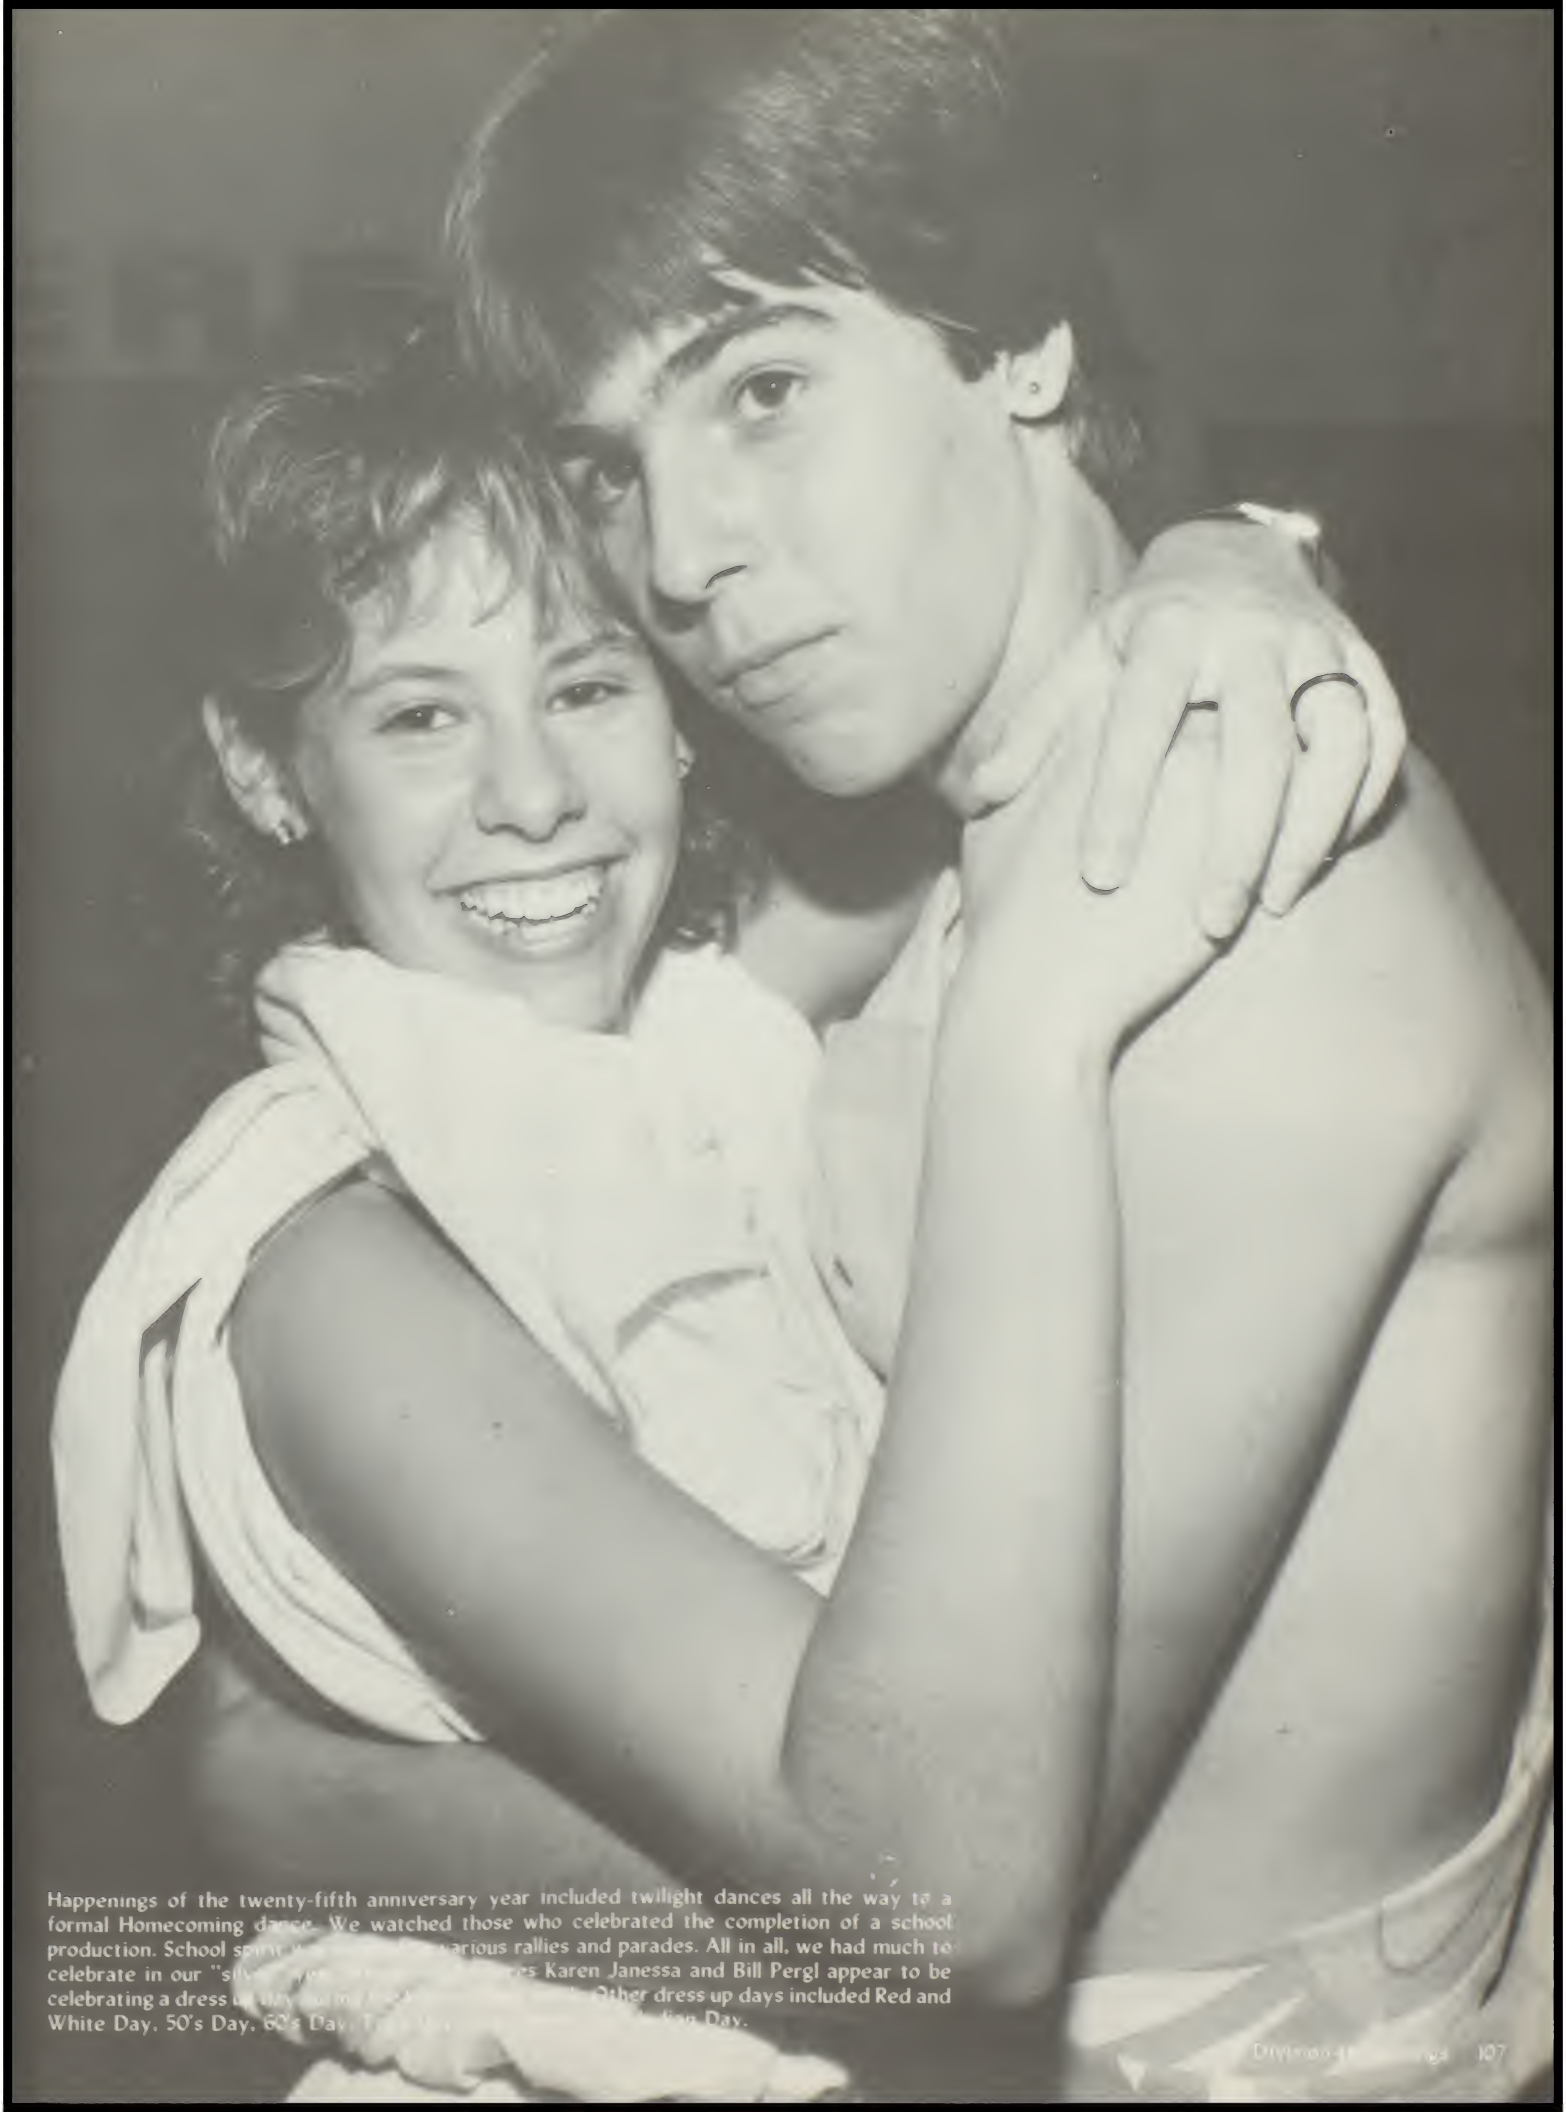
Happenings



Happenings of the twenty-fifth anniversary year included twilight dances all the way to a formal Homecoming dance. We watched those who celebrated the completion of a school production. School spirit [illegible] various rallies and parades. All in all, we had much to celebrate in our "sil[illegible]" year. Juniors Karen Janessa and Bill Pergl appear to be celebrating a dress up [illegible] Other dress up days included Red and White Day, 50's Day, 60's Day, [illegible] tion Day.

Often seen blowing her own horn is senior band member Marsha Telengator. The band is an important part of every assembly.

ASSEMBLY BEATS THE HEAT

On September 6, with the temperature a mere 100 degrees in the gymnasium, over 1974 students and faculty gathered for the second annual "welcome back" assembly. Folders were turned into fans as everyone tried desperately to keep cool, but the heat just became more intense. Mistress of Ceremonies, senior Judy Zemsky, wished everyone a warm welcome back.

Many unplanned surprises characterized the pep assembly. In the middle of Principal Dr. Ring's speech, chants of "less filling and tastes great" began with the senior class and continued with the juniors. Student Senate president senior Dean Marinakas, who was supposed to speak, was replaced at the last minute when his speech was not approved by the administration. Indian mascot senior Judy Asher fired up the crowd with a rendition of the song "Shout," to the point where people began to move from the bleachers to the gymnasium floor to dance. Pompon girls were surprised by a false start in their music which forced them to "freeze" until the music was restarted. The final surprise of all surprises was the sudden ending of the assembly without the traditional playing of the school song by the band.

Showing their spirit, the senior class expresses their joy to finally be seniors. The opening Assembly was the Class of '86's first chance to be "real seniors."

Despite these happenings, the assembly included typical components consisting of performances by the varsity cheerleaders and speeches by Student Union president senior Jenni Holt and theater department representative senior Andy Mills. Robert Murphy, representing the faculty was an added touch this year with his welcome back speech.

"Overall, I thought the assembly went well. A lot of things that took place were byond my control but that is the risk you take when you plan something for so many people. I was very pleased to see everyone showing so much positive spirit so early in the year," concluded Judy Zemsky.

The Niles West varsity cheerleaders display their agility by forming a pyramid. No game would ever be complete without the spirit and enthusiasm of the cheerleaders.

Passing out 3-D glasses before the assembly is senior Mark Poolos. Mark is just one of the many students who helped promote spirit during the assembly.

Nervously awaiting her first all-school performance is Indian mascot Judy Asher. Judy brought smiles and spirit to all who watched her perform.

After a long night of dancing, the students
Sophomores Pam Marks, Sari Baker, Andrea V
students cool off by serving refreshments.

Judy

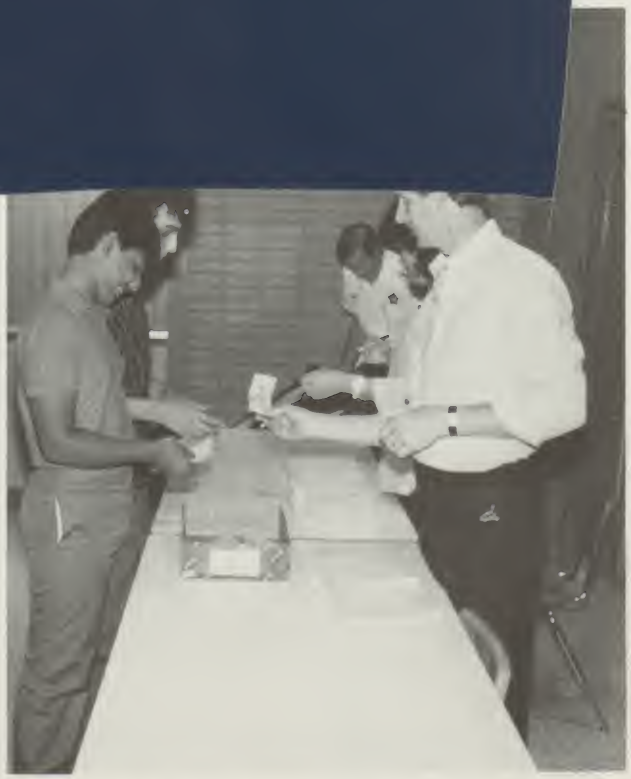
Sophomores Alexis Hershenhorn, Julie Wickell, and Gabbi Tomacic give the dance a thumbs up rating. The Back to School Bash was the first social event of the school year and a definite success.



Students rush to the cafeteria to get into the dance. Getting bash tickets is sometimes difficult as the number of tickets sold is always limited.

Sophomore fans gather in the rain to show their spirit during the first conference football game. The Back to School Bash occurred immediately after this game.

Helping the students achieve the maximum level of fun is a DJ from Dance Experience. He kept the dance going strong until 11 p.m. with his interesting mix of songs.

BOPPIN' AT THE BASH

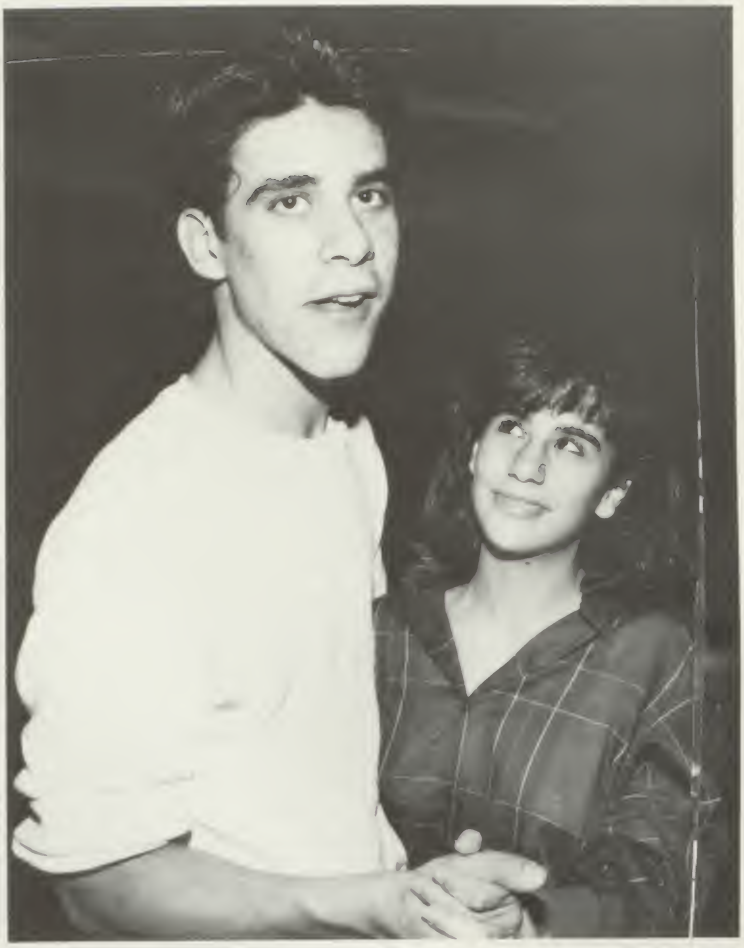
Summer was over and the new school year had begun. To help students get back into the swing of things, Student Union sponsored the Back to School Bash.

The bash was held after the home football game. From 9:45 until 11:45, the entire student body was invited to come, dance, and have a good time. Tickets were sold in advance for two dollars.

Despite the bad weather conditions, many students showed up to make the bash a big success. The disc jockey provided a variety of music to which everyone danced. Refreshments were also served to give students a chance to cool off.

For all who attended, the Back to School Bash was a great way to get together with friends, both old and new, and dance into the new school year. According to Sophomore Ryan Stoeterau, "The bash was a great way to forget the pressures of starting school and just have fun."

Dancing to their favorite song are sophomores Abby Starr and Todd Romashko. Although it is raining outside, there are many shining faces indoors.



Gina Bravos politely asks Ted Xentaras to please get off her foot as yet another romantic evening is ruined. Most couples seemed to enjoy themselves at the mixer.

Not pleased with the music from the D.J. is freshman Chuck Man who decided he would bring his own tunes from home.

Acting like freshmen are sophomores Amy Fullett, Julie Nelsen, Dawn Jacobs, Gwen Singer, and Karin Orsic. Obviously being surrounded by so many freshmen had these girls confused as to what year they really were.

Sophomore Danny Gold finds the Freshman-Sophomore Mixer to be a great place to pick-up girls. Many new acquaintances as well as old friends could be found at the mixer.

Getting into the spirit of the dance by wearing togas are sophomores Jason Litwin and Chris Bradbury. This year, many underclassmen livened up the mixer by wearing togas and other strange forms of dress.

UNDERCLASS MIX IT UP

The mixing of people took place at the annual Freshman and Sophomore Mixer. This event was held on September 27 in the Niles West Cafeteria and Courtyard. The mixer was sponsored by the Sophomore Class Cabinet, with more than 400 underclassmen attending. It was a good way to meet more people and have some fun. Sophomore Wendy Martin explained, "I met some new people and had a great time doing it."

Music by disc jockey Don Davis played throughout the night. The energetic music ranged from 60's to modern day new wave. Refreshments, including brownies, punch, and every kind of cookie imaginable, were laid out for the students, giving them a break from all the dancing.

Most of the students showed up in casual clothes, but some did get punked out. A few of the Sophomores brightened up the evening by wearing togas. Sophomore Dawn Jacobs commented, "More Sophomores should have dressed up in toga." All this excitement helped to make the night a success.

STRIKE GIVES STUDENTS "MINI VACATION"

While Niles West students were only in their third week of school, it was announced that there would be a strike. The strike began on September 30 and continued until October 9.

Although teachers picketed throughout the eight days, students used this time as a "mini-vacation" to sleep, go out, spend time with friends, or catch up on their favorite soap operas.

Freshmen returned to school for half a day on October 8, and were to continue going to school this way. But that night, problems were resolved and school resumed on October 9. The first day back was a bit chaotic. Classes started two hours late and many students didn't even show up because they were not aware that the strike had ended. But soon, school was "back to normal" and students realized that their "mini-vacations" were over and it was back to work once again.

"Don't treat us like dogs!" is the slogan so effectively portrayed in the picket line. The teachers had many ways to pass the time in the picket line.

Explaining recruiting information to some concernered parents is the Illinois Air Force representative. Students were not the only ones who attended College Night and collected pamphlets.

Students and parents were free to talk with representatives of various schools. Brochures were also available to help them make their choice.

College Night is open to anyone interested. As shown by the impressive turnout, students from many schools took advantage of the chance to get more information about various colleges.

ACADEMIC PURSUIT

On Tuesday, October 1, over 200 coleges and universities were represented at college night. Juniors and seniors who were college-bound were able to walk around to the different booths displayed throughout the cafeteria, gymnasium, and first and second floors. Larger universities occupied classrooms and held question-and-answer sessions. Students received pamphlets and brochures from various schools.

College night, sponsored by the guidance center, seemed to be an informative and worthwhile experience for many Niles Township students. Junior Chris Olsen explained, "It helped me decide which colleges would be good for me." This seemed to be the case mainly for students who knew what career they wanted to pursue. However, for people who were undecided, such as senior Nissin Behar, college night was not as rewarding. Behar stated," I thought it was a little disorganized. There wasn't enough time to ask enough questions." Many other students who walked into the gym and were overwhelmed by the numerous colleges cramped together shared this view.

Dr. Cocking, who was involved in the preparation of college night, observed, "It went very well. The attendance was as good as in the past and there were fewer cancellations from universities then for the past two to three years." In reference to the number of colleges undecided students had to contend with, he replied, "It's a shopping experience."

In the future, Dr. Cocking felt that it would be a good idea to have a preparatory class for college night. These sessions would give advice to students about what kinds of questions to ask and which colleges they might look at if they know what field they will be entering. Meanwhile, college bound students can go to their counselors for answers to these and other questions.

Junior Sue Chang answers some questions for Michigan State University. At College Night students were instructed to fill out questionaires if they desired further information about the school.

Although hundreds of schools are represented at College Night, other options are also made available to the students. The Coast Guard, along with other branches of the military, made a special landing on the front lawn of the school.

"TO-GA, TO-GA"

"TO-GA, TO-GA!" This chant was the perfect one to kick off the fourth day of "Niles West presents . . . A Silver Screen Anniversary."

The "Animal House" day theme found students dressed in togas and college sweats. The halls were filled with Flintstones' sheets and sweatpants with Harvard printed across the back end.

Some students wanted to go as far as starting a food fight in the cafeteria to follow the example of "Animal House," but security assured them that B.A.C. didn't quite fit into the theme.

"Animal House" day brought out a little bit of wildness in all who participated, but it didn't make a difference because "it was all Greek to them" "Toga day presented West students with a whole new world of fun," concluded junior Dale Sherman.

Dress-up days help make Homecoming more than just another football game. Here, seniors Jenni Holt and Jon Lisco get into the Greek spirit of toga day.

Always the orator, junior James Van Osdol stresses his point as he makes himself comfortable in the cafeteria. Toga clad students could be found throughout the school, from the music wing to the science labs.

Freshmen can have spirit, too, as shown by Mindy Grossberg. Students in togas could be found among all grade levels.

While entertaining his friends, senior Eric Nutting shows off his original toga. Many students participated in this event by wearing togas in a variety of styles and colors.

ASSEMBLY RUNS SMOOTHLY

The indoor pep assembly was scheduled to get under way at 7:45 A.M. on October 23, but some energetic people began to show spirit even before this early hour. These student started handing out 3-D glasses in the parking lot and hallways to get the student body into the "Silver Screen Anniversary" mood.

With Jon Lisco as the master of ceremonies, the assembly began. It featured the annual spirit panel contest with Sophomore Cabinet winning first place. To keep the spirit flowing, the varsity cheerleaders performed their Homecoming routine, which was followed by the eagerly anticipated announcement of the 1985 Homecoming Court. Members were: Julie DiModica, Jenni Holt, Carrie Kaplan, Stephanie Leader, Heather Ross, Aneshia Winter, Joe Barber, Joe Lochner, Gary Paustian, Mark Poolos, and Mike Reinhardt. Next, the senior members of the Pom Pon Squad performed their award winning kick line.

Addressing the school during the Indoor Pep Assembly is Varsity Soccer Coach Joe Brennan and Varsity Football Coach Bill Richardson psyched up the crowd for a winning Homecoming game.

A standard event in every pep assembly is a speech by the school mascot. Giving a pep talk, Indian Judy Asher leads the students in a cheering contest.

Senior Paul Bouboutsis and Steve Ivezic pass out 3-D glasses before the morning pep-assembly. The participation of the students in the stands helped make the assembly a success.

Sophomore Angela Hanga gets into the Homecoming spirit as she hopes for yet another Indian victory. Many students showed their spirit by dressing in red and white and wearing face paint.

Master of Ceremonies James VanOsdol rouses up the crowd with an entertaining evening program. The Twi-Light Pep Rally helped to psyche up students for the next day's game.

Using flashlights to experiment with a totally new concept in night-time routines is the Pom Pon squad. As usual the squad was one of the highlights of the pep rally.

SPIRIT UNDER THE STARS

"It was outstanding, it was marvelous, it was the most fun event I ever participated in," stated sophomore Bryan Mittelman.

Junior Adam Mizock added, "The Twilight Pep Assembly showed there's some spirit at Niles West."

The night's events included a spectacular and brilliant show performed by the pom-pon squad, followed by what everybody had been waiting for . . . the coronation of the homecoming king and queen. Sir King, Joe Lochner and her highness, Queen Julie DiModica, were the reigning king and queen of the year for the kingdom of Niles West.

"I really appreciated the delightful music along with the rest of the events," stated senior Paula Krone. The music was provided by Dave Allen at the keyboards and senior Adam Turetzky at the guitar along with the Marching band. The gala event lasted from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Following the rally, a twilight pep dance was held.

The burning of an effigy symbolizes the downfall of an enemy. This effigy proved to be a source of strength for the Indian Homecoming victory.

Practice makes perfect! The varsity cheerleaders are all smiles as they successfully complete their routine.

SENIORS SUPPLY SERVICES

On Thursday December 20, members of the senior class cabinet visited the Jane Adams Hull House in Chicago for the annual Christmas party. The purpose of the party is to give less fortunate children the opportunity to have the best possible Christmas they can have. Also, the seniors have a chance to share in the real spirit of the holidays.

The seniors this year went all out and put a lot of money into a most worthy cause. They bought a lot of presents for the children and worked hard to plan fun games that they would enjoy. Jon Lisco told the Christmas story and Jordan Cramer came in all the way from the North Pole to play Santa Claus and distribute presents. Sherri Owens, the senior cabinet's new advisor, was very impressed with the party. "It was a terrific experience seeing our seniors getting involved with people less fortunate than themselves. It is the only activity of its kind and I think the seniors will always remember it," commented Owens.

Another activity the senior class cabinet participated in was helping to coach the Malloy basketball team. The Malloy Center is a special school for mentally handicapped children.

Going for the basket, two Malloy students, Jason and Jimmy, participate in a practice game. The students put as much effort into practices as they do games.

Nametags were given to the students at the Hull House to provide a "personal touch." The Christmas party was beneficial to Niles West and Hull House students alike.

The children of the Jane Adams Hull House feel more comfortable when spoken to in their native language of Spanish. Senior Jon Lisco entertains the kids with a rousing game of "Simon dice" or "Simon says."

Giving one of the Malloy team members a pep talk is Cynthia Papoutsakis. Moral support is as important to the team as learning their basketball skills.

Putting the finishing touches on the Midnight Riders' Homecoming float is senior Cathy Tameraz. The Midnight Riders put a lot of time into various projects which made Homecoming a terrific experience.

Senior Judy Asher accompanies the Marching Band and Pom Pon girls along the parade route down Oakton. Niles West is definitely the only school with a roller skating Indian.

PARADE - A CROWD PLEASER

Full of glitter and excitement, the Homecoming parade was an unquestionable success. A new route, going through more neighborhoods, meant that more people were able to watch the parade. The parade started at Niles West on Saturday, October 26 at 10:30, and made its way through Morton Grove, Skokie, and Lincolnwood, ending back at Niles West in time for the big game against the Warriors. At the head of the parade were the Homecoming King and Queen, Joe Lochner and Julie Di Modica, in a Cadillac convertible. The parade's numerous floats included ones by the junior and senior cabinets, cheerleaders, pom-pons, swim team, basketball team, and the orchestra, which rated as the best float.

The parade was organized by James VanOsdol and Dale Sherman, president and vice-president of Junior Cabinet. Said VanOsdol, "It was a lot of hard work but it all paid off in the end, as everyone involved seemed to have a good time." "The only thing that didn't run smoothly about the parade," commented Sherman, "was the local city traffic."

Just how much fun was had at the parade? Said junior Scott Mandl," It was great fun participating in the parade, and it was great to see everyone having a good time." Recalled junior Mike Phillips, "I had a better time than I ever thought I could have."

Prepared for every situation, the Pom Pon squad brings along enough toilet paper for the entire parade. The squad gave up their traditional float on a fire engine in favor of a school bus.

Representing Senior Cabinet is Garrett Fienberg and Lisa Sandlow. Their Float, like many others in the parade, showed that a great deal of time and effort were put into it.

The beaming faces of seniors Zafreen Sirajullah and Albert Rhee show their pride in their float. The orchestra took first place in the float competition.

"We're number one!" is the message that Student Union members express to nearby onlookers. None of Homecoming would have been possible without the help of many dedicated members of this organization.

During the half-time show, Principal Donald Ring addresses the Homecoming crowd. Dr. Ring received the honor of presenting the Homecoming Queen, Julie DiModica with the traditional game ball.

Senior Rick Maybrun completes another successful play as he hands off the ball. Rick was just one of the devoted players who contributed to the winning of the Homecoming Game.

Escorting the Homecoming Queen, Julie DiModica down the field is Homecoming King Joe Lochner. The happy couple was all smiles as they watched the Indians' victory.

Gathered in a huddle, the Varsity Football team plans their next course of action. This was the first Homecoming victory in five years for Niles West.

Senior Lee Gramatis prepares for the upcoming game. The players were extremely nervous as they hoped for a Niles West victory.

INDIANS "WHOMP" WARRIORS

After many hours of preparation and anticipation, the big event had arrived. The Indian football team eagerly awaited the start of the Homecoming game against the Maine West Warriors.

On Saturday October 26, at 2:00 p.m., with the temperature a balmy 70°, the Indians began the game.

The Warriors did not know what hit them as the Indians dominated the game with 191 yards total offense. Maine West was allowed only 50 yards.

Senior quarterback Rick Maybrun led the Indians to a 19-0 lead.

The Indians scored in the second quarter and a one yard touchdown run and Sung Lim put up the extra point to give the team a 13-0 lead.

During halftime the homecoming festivities continued. The 1985 Homecoming King, Joe Lochner, Queen, Julie DiModica, and court members Mike Reinhardt, Gary Paustian, Mark Poolos, Doug St. Marie, Joe Barber, Heather Ross, Stephanie Leader, Aneshia Winter, Carrie Kaplan and Jenni Holt were introduced. Also, June Wang from the Republic of China was honored. Queen Julie Di Modica was presented a souvenir football by Principal Dr. Ring.

With only four minutes left in the game, the Indians show the Maine West Warriors who is number one. The Indians had a substantial lead on the Warriors throughout the game.

Also included during halftime activities was a colorful performance by the band and pompon girls. As the final seconds winded down, the Varsity Cheerleaders gave the crowd some added spirit.

Maybrun not only scored the first touchdown of the second half, but he helped out on the third score by tossing a 36-yard touchdown pass to Mark Poulakidas.

The third touchdown was set up by senior Gary Paustian's interception. Paustian and junior J.J. McCulloh, who was credited with two solo and 10 assisted tackles, were defensive players of the game, according to Head Coach Bill Richardson.

The offensive co-player of the week was senior Lee Gramatis, who caught four passes for 43 yards. Rushing was paced by junior Paul Kasprak, who carried six times for 33 yards. Maybrun ended up completing seven of 15 passes for 102 yards and one touchdown.

Joining Gramatis as offensive player of the week was senior guard Kurt Kiernicke.

Finishing the season with consecutive victories over Waukegan East and Main West, the team concluded the 1985 season with a 3-6 overall record, 2-3 in the CSL conference.

STARDUSTMEMORIES

It was 8:00 P.M., Saturday, October 26, and the stage was set for the Homecoming Dance. The theme was "Stardust Memories" and Student Union had it played to the hilt. The gym was elaborately decorated as a galaxy, with each of the 200-plus couples having their own star. A large parachute was suspended from the ceiling, which, in combination with the band's lights, helped to create an unearthly atmosphere on the faster numbers and a very romantic setting on the slow songs. The band that provided the music and special effects was "Encore," a group that was no stranger to West functions, having performed at previous dances. Knowing how the Indians like to party, "Encore" got the crowd moving with hot dance tunes "Oh, Sheila," "1999" and "Sussudio." To many in attendance, though, it was slow dancing to songs like "Cherish," "Joanna" and "Who's Holdin' Donna Now?" that they'll remember most.

There was an aura about those in attendance that this would not be a night they would soon forget. In the words of junior James VanOsdol, "Maybe that stuff about these being the best years of your life isn't such a lie after all."

Seniors Nicholette Romashko and Jordan Cramer share a dance. They, like many other couples, thoroughly enjoyed themselves and made Homecoming a success.

After a hard week at school, Juniors Dita Jusufi and Vince Butera relax on the dance floor. The gym floor was crowded with energetic couples just like this one.

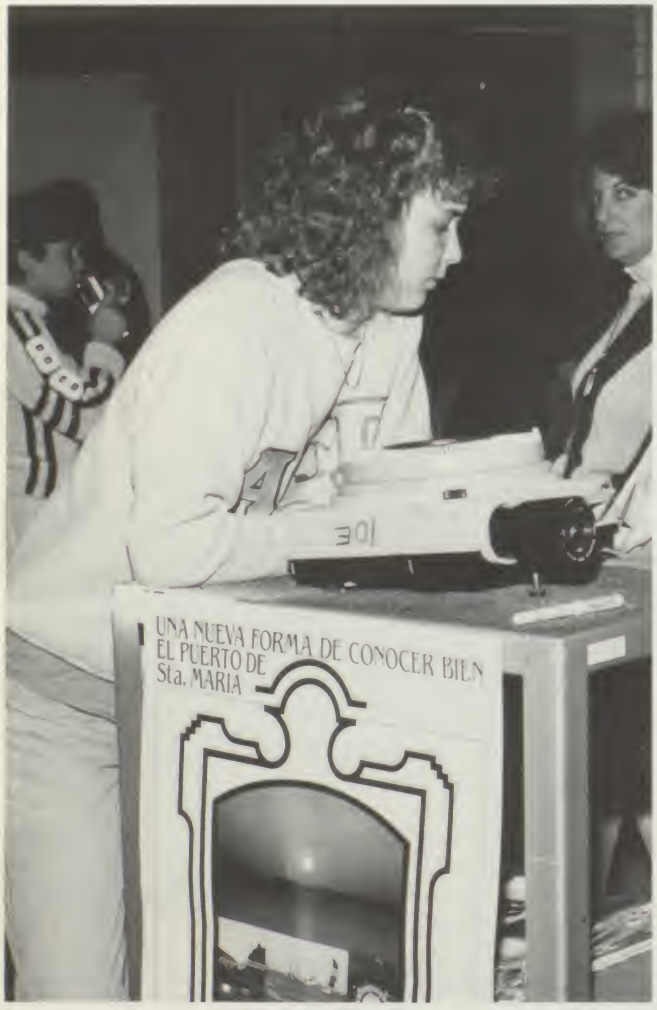
Waiting patiently for a glass of punch, junior Sam Volchenboum takes time out from the next dance. Several varieties of hors d'oeuvres and punch were served throughout the dance.

Seniors Mike Grzywa and Dayna Lieberman share an intimate slow dance. The band, Encore, played a well mixed variety of up-beat and slow tunes.

Dancing the night away are seniors Melinda Ring and George Kotsiopoulos. Homecoming '85 was the last opportunity for many seniors to share the homecoming experience.

Open House is a good time for parents to meet their children's teachers. Offering his help to one of these bewildered parents is English teacher James Sweeney.

Beginning with a lecture, social studies teacher Chuck Anderson treats parents like his students. Open House gives the parents a chance to ask questions and learn more about their children's school life.



Set up in the cafeteria is AFS representative Theresa Sloma. Theresa helped keep the parents occupied with a presentation of her AFS trip to Germany last summer.

Many teams and clubs set up tables in the cafeteria to inform the parents of the many Niles West extra-curricular activities. Here some parents enjoy the refreshments while checking out the football display.

Full of smiles, varsity cheerleaders Debbie Schwartz and Carrie Kaplan offer their assistants as tour guides to lost parents.

PARENTS HIT THE BOOKS ONCE AGAIN

On the evening of October 23, major confusion filled the halls of Niles West. The parents of Niles West students got a chance to experience a piece of their child's day-to-day school life. Running through halls, ending up in the wrong place, and being late to class on top of it, were just a few things the parents encountered. They were just like incoming freshman coming to a new school. However, with the help of the cheerleaders, the parents came out smiling, knowing they were headed in the right direction.

Many activities went on in the cafeteria that evening. Parents were able to meet with athletic teams and the different organizations, such as the Student Union, AFS, and the class cabinets. They were also able to listen to the orchestra perform.

A fun and informative evening was had by all.

Halloween turned out to be a day of creativity and surprise. Participating in the fun are seniors Carrie Kaplan as a playboy bunny, Lisa Sandlow as a doctor, Laurie Adams as static cling, and Jackie Rozencwajg as a baby.

No, it is not Madonna, but it is close. Pictured is senior Jon Lisco in his extraordinarily accurate disguise.

Senior Bob Gutierrez stares in dismay as he is immitated by senior Scott Kravetz. In this case, a costume is not necessary since the pose tells it all.

Grabbing a banana before his next class is the Niles West gorilla. Some costumes on Halloween proved to be extremely original and outragous.

An unidentified monster gets into the Halloween spirit. Students from all grade levels participated in this mysterious and magical day.

SCARY SITUATION

It was the night of the Black Sabbath. Witches and warlocks gathered around the cauldron and chanted in an unearthly manner. People in the village knew this was the day to hide their young. Witches would sacrifice children from the villages to show their loyalty to their lord, Satan. It was day for the undead to celebrate their day of freedom from their natural dormant state. It was Halloween.

Although Halloween is not celebrated with sacrifices anymore, it is celebrated among the living in various other ways. Parents usually dress up their children in costumes and take them begging for candy, "trick' or treating." This is an old custom, orignating from those days when the spirits of the underworld would come for children and parents would give them candy instead, so they wouldn't take the offspring.

Teenagers, especially at Niles West, celebrate in their own festive ways. Egg throws and shaving cream fights are popular during evening hours. "I love to chase the kids around when they come to my house. I put on my gorilla mask and toss eggs at them," stated David Bloom.

Cheerleading is not as easy as it looks as seniors Mark Poulakidas and David Weinberg find out. They also notice that the cheerleading skirts do very little to keep their knees warm.

Senior Jeff Lowell, a fairy princess, comes to the aid of rookey football player Heather Ross. Both seniors enjoy getting into the Halloween spirit.

POW WOW 1985, A "CELEBRATION!"

"Celebration," the rock musical which depicted an orphan and his struggle to obtain the remnants of an orphanage in which he once lived, marked the theme for Pow Wow '85. Held on October 31 and November 1 and 2, the musical was based on a script written by playwright Tom Jones and its music was adopted from the works of composer Harvey Schmidt.

The story's plot focused upon an orphan, played by sophomore John Barba, and his promise to an old man, Mr. Rich, portrayed by sophomore Arthur Tiersky. The orphan promised to make Mr. Rich feel young again in return for the restoration of his lost home. In pursuit of this goal, the orphan received the aid of Potemkin, played by senior Paul Bouboutsis, and an angel, portrayed by sophomore Michelle Dayan. The mood of the story was further enhanced by the presence of a chorus dressed in masks and headdresses.

Through the combined efforts of actors, crew and chorus members, the show's run proved a success. As senior Andy Mills, the musical's technical director and set designer commended, "Celebration was not only more successful than originally thought, but also an experience that will long linger in the minds of those who participated."

Capturing the moment, Michelle Dayan sings to a packed house. Celebration drew large crowds during its three night run.

Potemkin, portrayed by senior Paul Bouboutsis, puts a reassuring arm around Orphan played by sophomore John Barba. Celebration, the student run production, was a huge success.

As cast members John Barba and Michelle Dayan take a break in the wings, the show continues on stage. Performing on stage can be very tiring work.

Full of anger and rage, sophomore Arthur Tiersky portrays Mr. Rich with unbelievable emotion. In the play, Mr. Rich is promised his youth in exchange for restoration of an orphanage.

Smiling a silly grin, Potemkin, played by senior Paul Bouboutsis delivers his lines with perfection.

WAKE UP!!

Problem: You have a chemistry examination and an English term paper due tomorrow.

Solution: pull an all night'er and sleep the next day while attending school. Where are the best "snooz-spots" in Niles West?

According to Junior Dale Sherman, "By far the most comfortable place to snooz in Niles West is with the cats in the Oakton Lobby."

Freshman Bob Faskos, a transfer student from Wyoming commented, "The best place to sleep is over there, yonder." He said this while pointing to his homeroom.

"I zonk out every day in Mr. Dessing's chemistry class," smirked Junior J.J. McCulloh.

Not able to wait for the closest chair, junior Todd Suckerman crashes on the comfortable carpeting in the band wing. After a long, hard night of studying, students will do anything to catch a few winks.

Finding class to be too much to take, junior Jill Hedrich closes her eyes for just a second. Falling asleep in class is not an uncommon problem at Niles West.

Having no homework to keep her occupied, senior Ilene Kreitzman catches a few extra winks of sleep. Study hall is used as a quiet rest area, rather than a study area, for many students.

After finishing some serious studying, senior Garrett Feinberg takes time out to relax. The English Recource Center is a popular place for students during their free time.

Many of the judges put the pies under careful scrutiny before tasting them. Here, a judge gets a closer look at a pie so he can judge its appearance.

CHEFS COMPETE

Wednesday, February 19 was the day and the student cafeteria was the place for the eleventh annual cherry pie contest. In the first phase of the contest, students from beginning foods classes and chefs courses completed baking cherry pies. Students from each class baked pies which were judged on appearance by instructors from the Home Economics Department. The two best-looking pies were picked, and two winning chefs then combined their expertise to participate in the contest.

Finally, the cafeteria phase of the contest came. Pies were judges by a panel of teachers and administrators on the basis of technique, appearance, and finally, taste. The winners were awarded with a plaque. Foods and chefs course instructor, Elizabeth Oldham, stated that the contest was a great way to introduce and promote the foods classes to the students.

The proud bakers of each pie line up next to their pies. Winning the Cherry Pie Contest is an honor for aspiring bakers.

School board members, faculty and administration serve as judges in the annual Cherry Pie Contest. This festive event is sponsored by the Home Economics Department.

Judges of the Cherry Pie Contest take copious notes for each pie. They consider appearance and texture as well as taste.

Autos teacher Glen Jurek looks over the entries before taking notes. It is a tough decision since all the pies look so delicious.

Savoring every bite, counselor Mary Carr, a judge in the contest, must sample over seven pies.

A SALUTE TO WALT DISNEY

There was an element of magic felt in the air, as over three thousand elementary and pre-school children sat waiting in the auditorium for the curtain to rise and the show to begin.

Childrens Theatre had a new twist to it. Instead of being a scripted play, it was composed of a medly of songs, paying a tribute to Walt Disney.

The show was directed by Cynthia Phobin. Assistant to the director was Junior Abby Ivner. Technical Director was alumni Lee Goldberg. Assistant to the Technical Director was Andy Mills. Choreographer was Gretchen Glader. Assistant to Gretchen Glader was Andrea Field. Vocal Director was Sheri Owens, and her assistant was Millisa Rubens.

Their was a talented cast of characters ranging from freshman to seniors. Peter Pan was played by Freshman Leila Stein. Pinocchio was played by Sophomore John Barba. Mary Poppins was played by Junior Rebecca Kolber, and Burt was played by Sophomore Matt Winer. Portraying Snow White was Senior Liz Kelley. Cinderella was played by Senior Lisa Ferrin, and her Fairy Godmother was played by Heather Doolittle. All in all, Children's Theater was once again a success.

Jiminy Cricket, played by sophomore John Barba, teaches Pinnochio, played by senior Marc Cooper how to use his wooden limbs.

Getting down and dirty is sophomore Matt Winer. Matt portrays Bert who sweeps chimneys for Mary Poppins.

Singing "Westward Home," sophomore Matt Winer, senior Marc Cooper, and sophomore John Barba dream of a new frontier.

Often help from a teacher can greatly assist a student. Here, Ms. Van Dorpe points out some mistakes to a student so he will be sure not to make them again in the future.

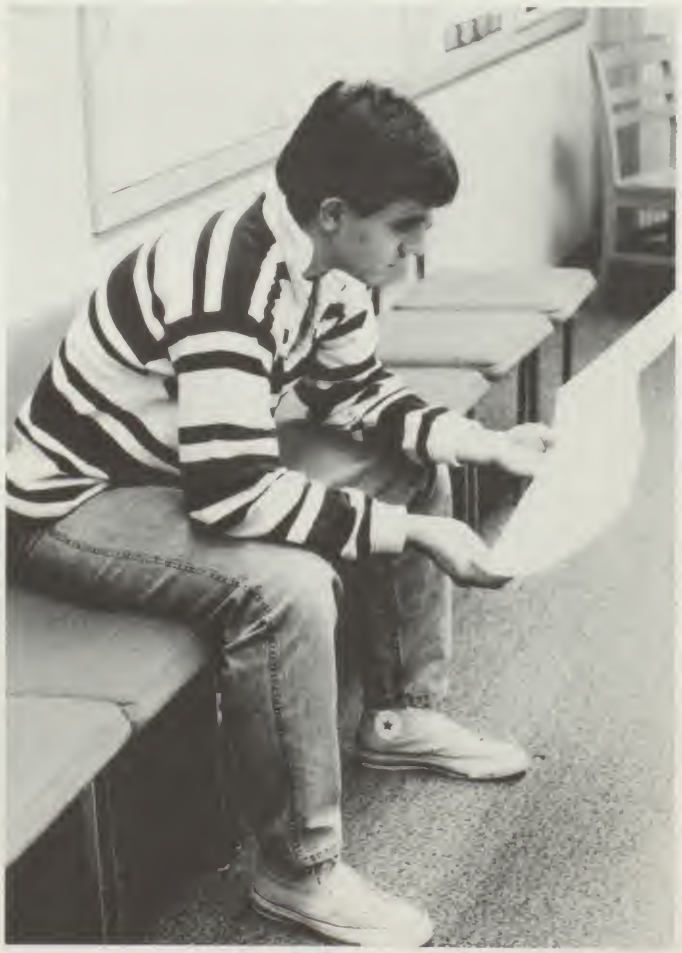
Resource centers are good locations to seek assistance from a teacher, or just to study for finals. Their quiet, comfortable atmosphere make them very conducive to learning.

FIERCE FINALS

Though many teachers saw them as an efficient means of measuring acquired knowledge during a semester of a given course, many students saw final exams as a rather tedious chore. For example, junior Craig Keer said that he found them " . . . mentally and physically draining - all I could do was watch cartoons afterward." Sophomore Missy Rabin thought they were " . . . a real pain," and freshman Mark Adriani thought they were " . . . just such a hassle."

Some didn't seem to care. Senior Lisa Sandlow thought finals were only "a minor inconvenience," and Jamie Boton, also a senior, found them "a joke."

Like them or not, all students had to take final exams in all of their credited courses. Junior Andy Rudin probably summed up the situation best when he said, "I knew I had to take them, so I simply studied hard and did the best I could."



During finals, students find time to study anywhere. Senior George Marks makes good use of his time in the Deans' office to study for his upcoming finals.

Knowing that her English final will be tough one, sophomore Caryn Shiffman asks James Sweeney for some helpful hints. Finals are a time of major stress for some students.

It is often easier for some people to study by themselves. This student has found a quiet table to review his homework before the final.

Bustakers have found that the half hour before homeroom is a very good time to finish up undone homework or to do some last minute studying. Some students do this in the hallway, while others go to the Library or Annex.

Senior Paul Bouboutsis, portraying the Artful Dodger, tells Oliver, 8th grader Adam Telengater, about the hardships of living on the streets of London.

OLIVER AT WEST

The stage was set at a London orphanage in the late eighteen fifties. Oliver was played by eighth grader Adam Telengater. This year's show had a different twist to it. Junior high school students completed the chorus. Oliver combined a vast number of students pulling different aspects of Niles West together. Members of music, drama, athletics, cheerleading and all different social strata were involved.

Director of the musical was Robert Johnson. Vocal director was Sheri Owens. The band was under the direction of William Koch. Behind the scenes, Cindy Philbin and Lee Goldberg were co-technical directors. The theater department hired Mark Schwartz, a professional lighting director.

Some of the stars of the show were Senior Andy Mills as Fagan, Jon Lisco as Bil Sykes, Paul Boubutsis as the Artful Dodger. Junior Rebecca Kolber played the role of Nancy, and Bet was played by Sophmore Joy Grossberg. Mr. Bumble was played by Sophmore John Barba.

Sophomore Jenne Shedroff gives the rest of the crew their cues. The stage crew is a very important part of the show.

Oliver, played by Adam Tlengator fights freshman Chirsten Geller for his food. The orphaned children were almost starved to death and made to work long hours in early London.

"Food, Glorious Food!" sing the poor children. The children were brought up from the jr. high schools to perform in the play.

Freshman Beth Lichtenstein leads the "Oliver Dancers" in a cheerful jig. The dancers spent long hours learning the choreography.

Junior Jason Boehm contributes to the cheerful melodies of "Oliver."

Comforting Oliver is senior Lisa Ferrin.

Bill Sykes, played by senior Jon Lisco, expresses how cruel he can be in the song "My Name."

Orchestra director Ted Kaitchuk strums along with the orchestra. This year's musical's orchestra was one of the largest in past years.

Sophmores Lisa Laskowski, Wendy Doyle and Arthur Tiersky find a wilted rose lying on the streets of London. A flower can brighten someones day.

The orphans gather around the dinner table. Food glorious food was one of the breathtaking scenes in Oliver.

TOURNAMENT TIME

Who says boys and girls can't compete on the sports field together? This year we had the annual N-club Volleyball tournament sponsered by "Doc" Katzman which featured both male and female athletes. The tournament, coined "The Tournament of Champions," by senior Mike Cristante was won by "The Batwingers" which included members John Han, Joe Lochner, Rick Mayburn, Dean Hagen, Dave Young, and Tom Merkle. Winning team captain commented after the victory that he felt his team really had no competition throughout the whole tournament. Ironicly, Tom's teamate, Joe Lochner claimed that it was an extremely competetive event. Dale Sherman said "It was a spectacle of Human Spirit never before witnessed in the Hallowed halls of Niles West." Dale's team the "mother's nightmares" finished fourth. Sophomore Greg Rudin said "It was a great experience destroying Gary Paustian's team."

Attempting a set to senior Lee Gramatis is senior Craig Izenstark. Izenstark and his teammates were eager to win the competition.

Senior John Hahn readies himself to spike the ball. The volleyball tournament was sponsored by the N-Club.

Volleyball greatly increased in popularity at Niles West. Junior Erik Bataller checks out the competition in the Volleyball Tournament.

Down on her knees, but not to pray, senior Anastasia Livaditis attempts the classic bump.

CLASS OF 1990 VISITS

On March 5, 1986, the annual Mini Open House was held for the incoming freshman class of 1990. The purpose of this evening was to introduce the different courses and activities that will be available to the students in the years that they attend Niles West.

Counselors met with parents and students in different areas around the school. They discussed topics such as the new graduation requirements, the grade-weight system, and the basic freshman cirriculum. Teachers from each department had demonstrations and discussions about their individual subjects. Foods classes had tempting samples made by students available to the incoming freshmen and their parents. The physical education department held a series of games keeping a carnival-like atmosphere in the gymnasium.

In the cafeteria members from various clubs and activities like Basketball, German Club, and Student Union were stationed to answer questions and sign up interested students. The Mini Open House proved to be a great way to show the class of 1990 and their parents some different aspects of Niles West.

Proud of their many conference and state titles, the Niles West Wrestling team displays the symbol of their victories.

Don't worry, kid, we won't hurt you." Varsity football players juniors Curt Takiguchi, Paul Kasprak, and J.J. McCulloh try to recruit new freshmen by showing game films.

"Go Big Red!" was the general theme of the Mini Open House evening. Parents from the Booster Club sold various Niles West memorabilia throughout the night.

The West word wants you! Senior Rhonda Bergman tries to recruit new members for the student run newspaper.

Various clubs and sports, such as the Varsity Soccer Team, had displays and presentations for the students throughout the evening. One of the main objectives of Mini Open House is to introduce eighth graders to the extra-curricular activities that Niles West offers.

The singing and dancing talents of Expressions were also displayed at Mini Open House. The eighth graders appreciated the efforts of senior Carrie Kaplan and sophomore Joy Grossberg and friends.

A representative of the golf team, senior John Spagaletti demonstrates the many skills he has learned while on the team. Mini Open House gave eighth graders the chance to meet some upperclassmen.

OUR FAVORITE LADY

During this past year, the restoration of the Statue of Liberty became a very important matter. Various types of fund raisers took place all over the United States hoping to raise enough money. Niles West also participated in the fund raising by entering the Run For Liberty. An assembly was held in the auditorium explaining what the run was about. Students were given several days to receive pledges from sponsors who would be willing to help. A specific amount of sponsors could win you a Run For Liberty button or T-shirt. The run took place on October 28 and 29, and all students ran whether they had sponsors or not. Many teachers ran too. "Inspirational" music was played while students ran (or should I say walked) around the track.

Although the fund raiser was for a good cause, it was not very successful. Some money was collected, but not as much as they had expected. However, the money that was obtained will be very useful and will serve an important purpose, the restoration of the Statue of Liberty!

Athletic Director Gerald Turry congratulates Judy Sloan, who directed the Run for Liberty, on the success of the event. The Run for Liberty could not have occurred without the help and support of the gym teachers.

"What a job!" Sophomores Benjamin Salkin and Julie Doehler proudly exclaim to each other. Benjamin and Julie raised the most money of all Niles West students to be used to restore the Statue of Liberty.

Proudly displaying the Lady Liberty portrait that Niles West received for its participation in the Run for Liberty are sophomores Benjamin Salkin and Julie Doehler.

GOING, GOING, GONGED . . . AGAIN!

Though many of the acts found themselves performing after very little preparation, the second annual Niles West Gong Show still proved to be the talent showcase that all in attendance has expected.

Acts ranged from the bizarre to the ridiculous. A vocal group pleased the crowd so much that they left the stage dodging dozens of thrown dimes. A trio of dancing aliens, a comical batch of nerds, and even a mime, who fortunately, was beat silly by members of his own act, highlighted the show. The winning act, "Scholastic Rockers" featuring seniors Jon Lisco, Garrett Feinberg and Ian Faloona, wowed the audience with riveting renditions of Saturday morning cartoon ditties from the past.

The five-person panel of judges was comprised of Dr. Ring, principal, Dr. Stein, director of Language arts, Rita Stewart, director of student services, William Koch, band director, and Carl (Gong Em!) Geis, math wizard. The panel gonged many well-deserving acts and most of all agreed that they performed their job quite well.

Few acts ran the Gong Show gauntlet and lived to tell the tale, but those who did had quite a tale to tell. In the words of Dale Sherman, a junior and surviving member of the act "Wham, Bam, Thank You, Mime-" "It was an experience like none I've ever had before or hope to again."

Will the real Bruce Springsteen please stand up? The audience is confused as sophomore Arthur Tiersky does a touching rendition of "My Bar-Mitzvah" to the tune of Springsteen's "My Hometown."

Obviously pleased with junior Mark Gussin's guitar playing, M.C. James Puff shows his taste in music. Although he did not win, Mark was able to finish his performance before he was gonged.

Hosting the Gong Show is a rough job, but somebody has to do it. Mr. Puff took on this difficult task for the second year in a row and pulled it off with style.

The fans went crazy for the first place act, the "Schoolastic Rockers." Seniors Garrett Fienberg, Jon Lisco, and Ian Faloona brought down the house and left the crowd screaming for more.

"Nerds are people, too!" proclaims senior Dawn Mazzetta. Despite some technical difficulties, this "Revenge of the Nerds" act was a big success.

Who are these bubble headed aliens? Collecting third prize for their routine "I'm Praying to the Aliens" are seniors Andrea Poet, Karina Doyle, and Judy DeAcetis.

The Turnabout Dance, planned by Student Union, turned out to be one of the most memorable events of the year. Moving to the beat of their favorite tune are seniors George Kotsiopoulos and Stephanie Leader.

Freshmen Mindy Grossberg and Rob Mandell pause for a quick picture before dancing to the music of this year's band, the Yanks. Turnabout was a popular event among underclassmen as well as juniors and seniors.

Not exactly the next Bruce Springsteen, but the music of the Yanks was good and easy to dance to. The students appreciated a live band instead of the standard D.J. that is always present at the bashes.

Excited, but exhausted are freshmen Kevin Hansen and Julie Wiltgen. This year's Turnabout was a magical trip through Candyland.

CANDY-DANCE

"Is everybody having fun?" the lead singer from Yanks questions. The students answer with a resounding, "Yes."

Turnabout, what is turnabout? It is exactly what it says, the reverse of the normal formal dance. The girls ask the guys and the guys turn them down or they don't, depending on who has asked them.

This Years turnabout was run by student union who have sponsered the majority of the activities this year. The theme was Willie Wonka: a trip through candyland, featuring the Yanks.

The Yanks of course were the musical entertainment of the evening. According to some, they were a very enjoyable part of their candyland voyage. Adam Zimmerman remarked, "they did not play the top 40, they played stuff that, to me, went over very well."

Others were not so elated with the group. Senior Pam Sotiropoulos was one of them, "they're weren't enough slow songs" was her brief critical remark.

But as with all candies, things that are good don't last too long. Eventually the Willie Wonka trip ended leaving many people with memories that they may never forget.

Admiring the dance decorations and centerpieces are junior Cecile Yoon and her date, Steve Alschuler. Many students thought that the candy dispersed throughout the dance was a nice touch.

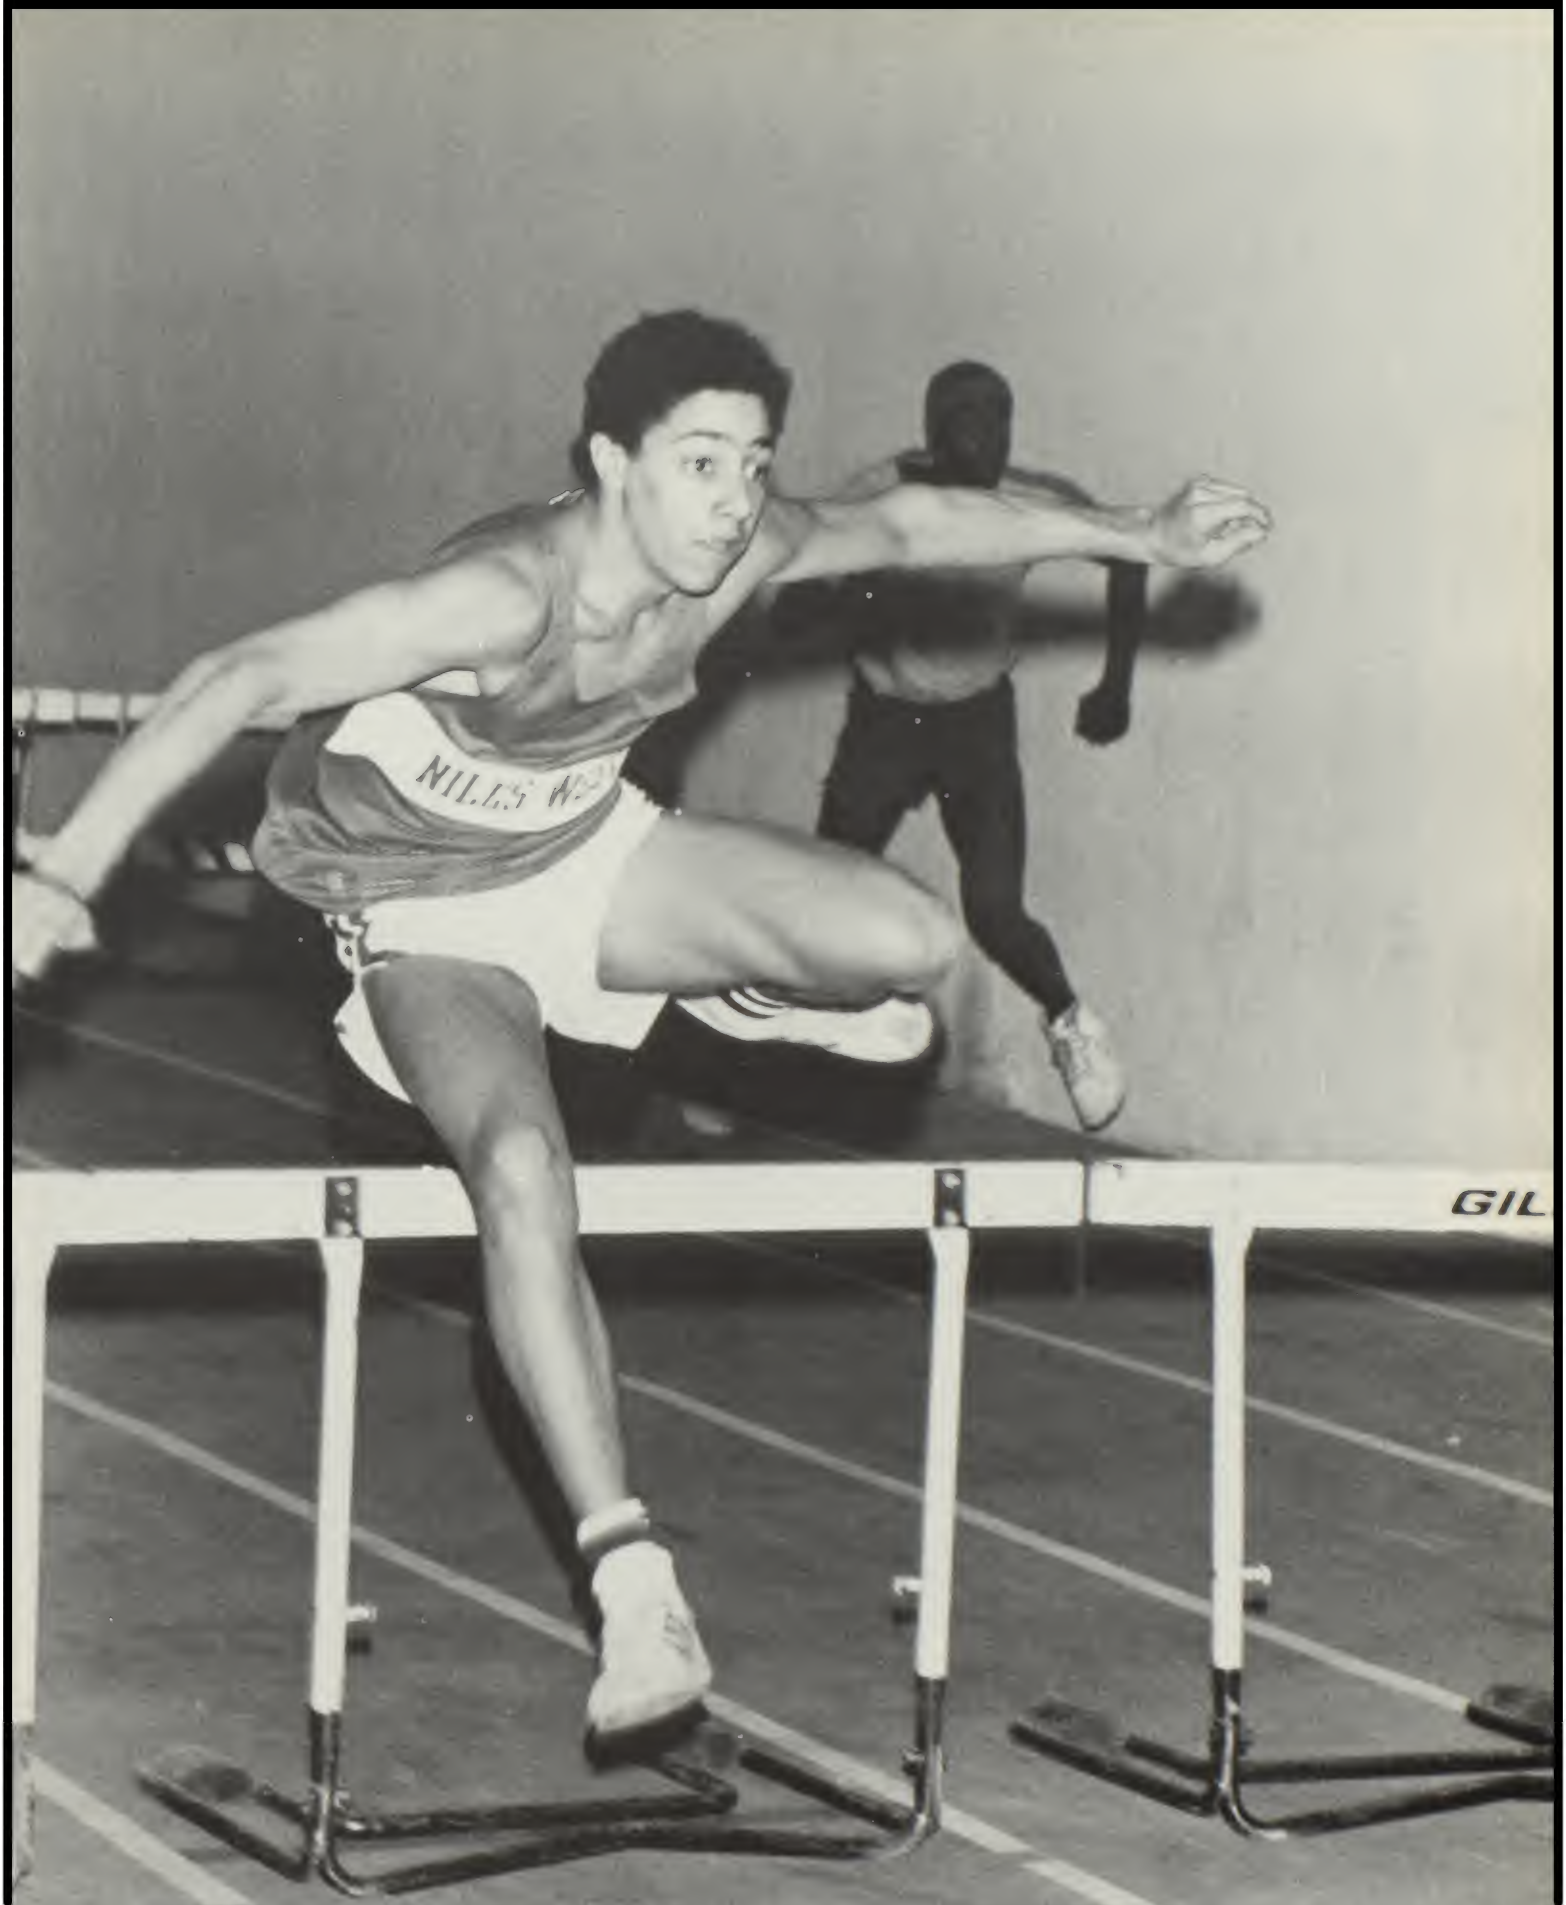
Athletics



The silver year in sports was one to remember. Football and Basketball spirit carried fans higher than scores at times, but participation helped for experience. Above, sophomore Ben Yashon executes outstanding agility. Track and field is usually performed in the spring months.

THE YEAR IN SPORTS

SPORTS

Executing his professional baseball knowledge, this player scores and brings home another victory for the Indians.

"TAKE ME OUT TO THE BALL GAME"

"Take me out to the ball game,
Take me out to the crowd . . ."

Yes, these are the first two lines to the song we all know. However, for sophomore and freshman baseball players, these words mean little. For these dedicated ball players who practice hitting a curve outside in the forty-degree weather the only reason for playing the game, is the joy of playing. Head Coach Klebba summed it up by saying, "High School baseball is not a spectator sport. The players are there because they enjoy playing the game, not because of the glory and recognition they get." Coach Klebba explained that one of their goals was to have fun and to win as many games as possible. Some of the boys that helped do the job were Craig Harris, Brian Israel, George Langis, and Paul Kim.

On the J.V. and Varsity levels coached by Mr. Galla and Mr. Nelson the players used the skills that they had mastered during their previous years to win all their games. Some outstanding players were Seniors Joe Lockner, Rick Mayburn, Jeff Lowell and Tom Merkel.

When these ball players grow up and have their grandchildren on their knees, do you think they will tell them, "Son, I used to play ball in forty-degree weather for fun?". You bet your peanuts and cracker jacks on it.

Practicing is a major part of team work which leads to success, Senior Joe Lochner practices to improve his pitching.

Back row: Coach Galla, R. Maybrun, J. Lochner, T. Kassel, D. Young, T. Merkel, S. Lashever, J. Wills, M. Cristante, Coach Nelson.

A strike was only the first for the Indians, but the next step was another homerun to add to the others.

MEYER REBUILDING TEAM'S SKILLS

For every head coach there exists a different game plan. This makes it difficult for the coach, players, and everyone else included with the program. When junior Greg Czernik was asked what he thought about this situation, he replied, "It is difficult to adjust to a new coach and a whole new system, but I think we did a good job becoming accostumed to Coach Meyer's new offense. Even though our record may not show it, we worked extremely hard during practice and games, and have become a respected basketball team." When Coach Meyer was asked what the school's team lacked, he replied, "There needs to be more basketball played in the community before High School level. They are physically not a very tall team, so we have to concentrate on the skill level and give the team experience."

The basketball players on the Junior Varsity Team felt the same way. Junior Jeff Altschul said, "I'm very excited about the new season and the new coach. It is honor to play for Coach Meyer. I hope to be part of the rebuilding of the basketball team's winning tradition at Niles West." If past accomplishments by the Meyer family dictate the future, Niles West fans will have a lot to look forward to the next few years.

Blocked and no where to go, senior Tom Merkel searches for someone to pass the ball to. Tom's Highland Park oppenent puts pressure on him by keeping him closely guarded.

LEARNING THE SYSTEM

The freshman and sophomore basketball teams spent most of their first two seasons learning the Niles West "system". Coaches Miner, Opels, and Doyle endlessly drilled the team, practicing until the players automatically had the plays in their heads. The experience and leadership developed during the first two years pays off in the junior and senior seasons. "The practices were tiring but we all know that it is for the good of the team," said freshman Max Schulman. The coaches tried to pound the thought of "playing for the team" into the players, and after two years the players learned that there is no "I" in the word team. This concept remains as one of the main guidelines of varsity sports.

Although this wasn't a slam dunk, Dean Klemenz gives it the right touch to score for the Indians.

BASKETBALL

Looking for an open player is sophomore Brian Israel. Brian has been playing outstanding this season.

Taking the advantage at the freethrow line is sophomore Brad Kave. This is Brad's second year on the team.

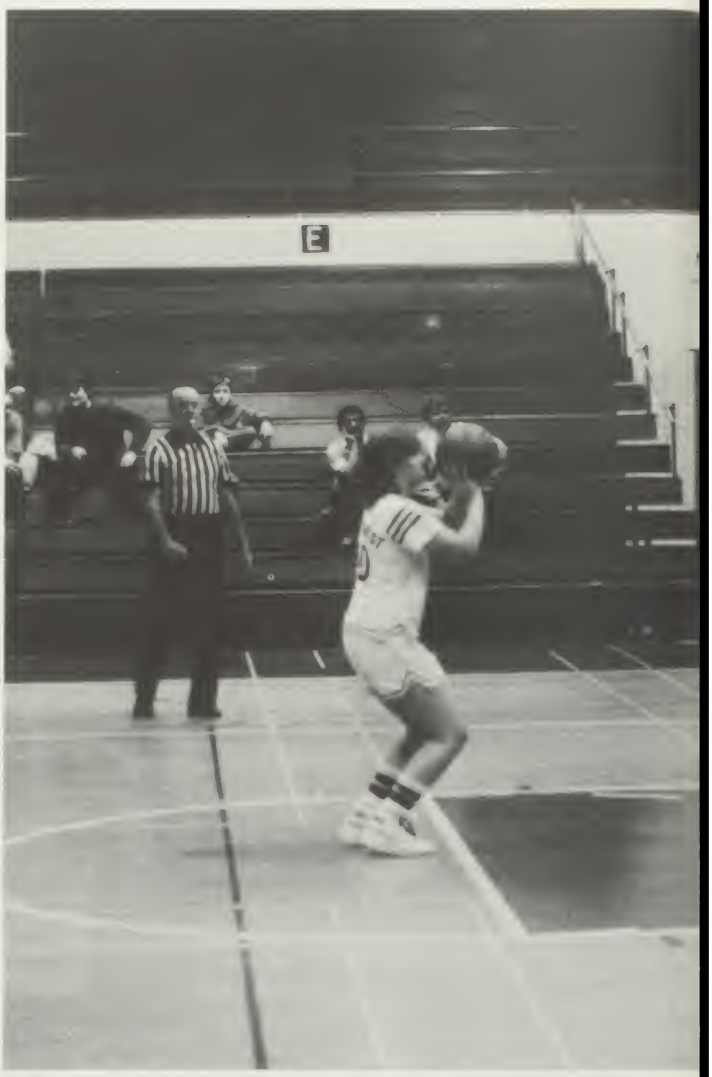
INTENSITY KEY WORD



"Intensity" was the word you heard echo from the huddle of the Girls Varsity Basketball Team. They played with an intense style.

The team, with their hardwork and dedication, showed great talent throughout the season. Coach Earl led the team to many victories. The music they played inspired them at each practice and before every game, as they ran up and down the court. Although the workouts were tough, the team stuck together and made it through a season full of great memories.

With the absence of Kathy Sokalski, the Indians strived to work harder and overcompensate for her loss. "It made us a stronger character team," stated junior Diane Field.

The Evanston Tournament proved to be a thrilling experience. Despite the many absences, the team managed to pull together and take a third place.

"The team was hard working and played well together. Even though the team is young, we get better at each practice," commented sophomore forward Linda Steiner. Outstanding players were Linda Steiner, Diane Field, and Helen Georgakopoulus.

Front row: J. Israel, A. Georgakopoulos, J. Kreher Middle row: L. Yetter, R. Zarate, H. Georgakopoulos, D. Field Back row: Coach Earl, K. Kassel, L. Skiner, K. Sobczak, K. Sokalski, C. Wendel, L. Cadivad

BASKETBALL

Coach Gene Earl discusses his game plan to the Varsity Basketball team during a timeout.

Front row: B. Danguilan, M. Connell. Middle row: D. Berman, V. Pontikas, C. Brown, A. Fuhs, C. Ridley, M. Alday. Back Row: Coach Klebba, A. Heinz, S. Stergios, D. Pozdol, M. Shiffman

YOUNG TEAM SHOWS POTENTIAL

Although the girls J.V. team was still young, the players showed great potential. Vigorous practices after school included conditioning, lots of running, and fundamentals. Most of the basketball players agreed that the practices were tough, but the key to success meant hours of practice.

The team was lead by Coach Klebba; "Our coach was very fair in giving us all equal amount of playing time throughout the games," commented sophomore guard Claudia Ridley." I think our future looks very promising." Key players were Michelle Alday, Claudia Ridley, and Mindy Shiffman.

Freshman Heather McCulloh shoots in a basket against Deerfield. Another victory for the Indians.

THUNDERING TO VICTORY

Sitting quietly in the bleachers talking to some friends, popping a piece of gum, and generally minding ones own business. Suddenly, one hears a rumble, and a movement out of the corner of your eye catches your attention. It's the Girl's Basketball Team thundering onto the court, beginning their warm-ups, all psyched up for tonight's game. This year's team was highly organized and worked well together. Coach Klebba was enthusiastic about the team's progress stating, "The girls practiced hard, played hard, and did a great job all around." The team looked forward to a winning season and strived to accomplish their goals.

GIRLS CROSS COUNTRY; ON THE ROAD AGAIN

The twenty-three girls who participated in Cross Country had a sense of accomplishment, undefeated except for two forfeits. In the conference meet they tied for third which placed them fourth in the conference itself. Freshman Peggy Campbell, Debbie Pozdol, and Junior Kathy Campbell, were All-Conference. Captains Felicia Bakshy and Andrea Poet were outstanding leaders. While the teachers were on strike, both the girls and boys on the team organized the Indian Invite and hosted it all on their own. Two highlights were Peggy Campbell's first place win in the freshman conference meet and Debbie Pozdol's fourth. "It was a super year," replied Head Coach Judi Sloan, "We had an abundance of young runners, the largest group since the team started. There will definitely be improvement next year. There are a lot of new runners plus this was a very good year."

Not only did the runners participate in meets, but they also observed the state meet in Peoria and went to Oglesby during the summer. Their record in dual meets resulted in an 8:2 record!

Sue Johnson, Melissa Connell, and Hye Ri Lee watch the races from the top of the stands like one big happy family.

CROSS COUNTRY

Senior Felicia Bakshy has the Demons surrounding her, but thats not a problem for the four year cross country runner.

Coach Armour gets Sharon Smith's time as she kicks into the chute for her best time.

BOYS CROSS COUNTRY; STAYING IN STRIDE

The Boys Varsity Cross Country Team had a fine season, finishing 9-4. The whole team worked hard, with an exceptional performance by senior Rocky Lee. Lee led the team for three straight years and even qualifyed for the state sectional. "We had a good year even though we had some bad races but usually we did well as a team." stated Rocky Lee. The outstanding runners included senior Sean Samuel, Juniors Sung Lee, and Mark Kim.

Sophomores turned out another fine season with a record of 9-3. They had a challenging season, but worked hard and accomplished many of their goals. The team was led by outstanding runner Steve Rosen. "We had a very successful season. We all worked hard and are looking forward to the next season", sophomore Brian Mittleman commented.

HIT MEN!

"Every game is the most important game of the season. We must prepare for each and every game . . . we can't let ourselves down after a loss. We have to hold our heads high and come back alive," stated coach Richardson during a hot, summertime practice before their first game against Maine East.

Niles West's strong offense was headed by the likes of seniors Joe Barber, Doug St. Marie, Jeff Lowell and Tom Merkel. The equally strong defense was spearheaded by Ray Giderof, Gary Paustian, Mike Kirchens, Chris Cordes and J.J. McColloh.

In the Homecoming game, the Indians defeated the Maine West Warriors by a score of 19-6. This was the season's final game, but not its final honor to the Indians. Named as "All-Conference" were Jeff Lowell, Doug St. Marie, Ray Giderof, Rick Maybrun and J.J. McColloh.

All in all, the season was looked upon as positive. Senior Jeff Lowell stated that "Even if our record didn't show it, we still had a pretty good season . . . we had good talent and we were strong at the end . . . we did the best we could considering the strike."

The Niles West Indians ended the season, then, with what was both a victory on the field and a personal victory for knowing they had done their best.

FOOTBALL

Snell, E. Brabec, K. Bradbury.

One of the major tasks of being a Quarter Back is looking for an open teammate to throw the ball to, as Senior Rick Maybrun shows here.

J.V. TEAM GAINS EXPERIENCE

Being a member of the Junior Varsity Football Team wasn't easy for most players. Playing time was limited and the J.V. team played only four games. The reasons for this included a limited schedule to begin with and the obvious interruption of the strike. J.V. players were present at every practice and worked just as hard as the varsity players. However, they received only a small portion of the recognition.

The Junior Varsity Team was under the direction of Coach Fred Crusunski. The team lost the four games they played. Most team members felt that not enough time was available for them to practice, leaving them unprepared for their games. Most players also agreed that their losses were due to their disorganized teams. The J.V. players realized, however, that they are the future Varsity Football Team. They are all very hopefull for a better record next year, but agree that some major changes must occur. Junior player B.J. Miller stated, "I would expect a drastic change between this year and next in the football program."

Sophomore Todd Romashko goes for the tackle to make it third down. The play ended up with a tournover, with the Indians having the ball.

GOLFERS PUTT "PAR-FECT"

Hole in One. Birdie. Par. What do these three terms have in common? They all pertain to the sport of golf. Golf calls for a lot of skill and coordination, as well as a steady arm and accurate judging distance.

Several factors affected their season. The strike had a major effect as there was a poor turn-out from the sophomore class. They were also in the toughest conference in the state. Despite these circumstances, two seniors, David Cohen and John Spagoletti qualified for sectionals. The team played 12 tournaments and won three. When asked what he thought about the team's season, Junior Tom Joseph replied, "We had the talent, but we just didn't apply it."

R. Friedman uses the correct position in order to hit the ball at the right angle.

FLIPPING OVER TEAM'S VICTORIES

Concentrating on making their vault, mastering their flips and improving their form was all part of the girls gymnastics team. "They enjoyed coming to the gym and working out," said Freshmen Coach Cami Axelson. "Coming to the gym and practicing was fun, not only because I like gymnastics, but because of the special freindships that I made," stated freshmen Rachel Posner. Posner, along with freshmen, Laura Wagner and Peggy Campbell showed some outstanding talent and enthusiasm out of the ten girls on the team. "If we all stick together, next year should be very promising," commented freshmen Shannon Crowley.

Some of the outstanding members were seniors Lori Aronson, Ingrid Helgeson, Stephanie Leader and juniors Kathy Campbell and Lauri Margolin. Stated Head Coach Jodi Nebbia, "I'm real excited about the talent on this year's team. We will miss our four graduating seniors but our sophomores and juniors are ready to step in and fill the spots."

The team had a lot of enthusiasm and dedication. All their hard work paid off when they placed second in districts. Stated Stephanie Leader, "Of my four years on the team, this year was definitely the most fun. There was a feeling of real closeness among us. Our closeness and team spirit helped us to reach our final goal-to defeat Niles North in our Regional Meet!"

Tumbling for a ten, Junior Kathy Campbell tries her best. Kathy has been on the team for three years and qualified for sectionals this season.

GYMNASTS GET SWINGING

"Gymnastics has always been a winning sport at Niles West. This year was no exception," stated John Burkel, coach of Boys' Varsity Gymnastics. This year they worked as a team whose goals were to win conference, qualify for sectionals, and have individuals qualify for state.

Some of the outstanding team members included Tom Joseph, Dennis Maybrun, Bob Krebs, Marty Fenton, Scott Jackson, and Sung Kim. Bob Krebs stated, "I am involved in this sport because I feel gymnastics is unique and different than any other sport. It involves much talent and the Niles West team has what it takes to do the job."

The Sophomore gymnastics team, coached by Louis Torres, was physically strong and mentally tenacious. They set their individual and team goals and were excited about them.

Stated coach Torres, "Sports are fun and challenging. I like to see young men who are tough enough physically and mentally to handle the challenges of the great sport of gymnastics." Some of the better team members were Darrin Baim, Anthony Irpino, Bob Levy, and Art Sanchez.

FRESHMEN AND SOPHOMORE KICKERS MASTER FUNDAMENTALS

The Sophomore Soccer Team turned in an excellent season. They were aggressive and willing to learn, and "feared no opponent." Most of all, they had fun. Practicing everyday after school the team greatly improved its skills. All the hard work paid off, as they ended their season undefeated in their conference.

"The team progressed throughout the season and we played up to our ability," said George Langis. Jim Daehler added that the team worked well together on the field. Outstanding players were Alix Kogan, Ben Yashon, John Puljic and George Langis. The team was coached by Mr. Hart.

The Freshmen A and B Soccer Teams including many boys who had never played soccer before. All of these players improved their game tremendously. By the end of the season, they started to work together as a team and not strive for individual accomplishments.

"The team worked hard and next year we are hoping to have a successful season," commented Greg Brudo and David Lee. Some hopefuls to look for in the coming years are Andres Limber and Ralph Anifiotis. The teams were coached by Mr. Zorn and Mr. Sweeny.

SOCCER

VARSITY AND J.V. KICKERS GIVE OPPONENTS "THE BOOT"

The team compiled an overall record of 8-10-1.

Along with all the other fall sports teams the strike had a major effect on the soccer season.

The team was able to make up the games lost but they had to play five conference games in four days. "For the most part of the regular season our schedule was filled with very tough games," stated Reinhardt.

In one week the team beat the number nine ranked team in the state New Trier, by a score of 1-0, number 20 ranked Loyola, 5-2, and the number 24 ranked team Oak Park 3-1, at home.

"Our victory over New Trier was our biggest win as a team. It meant a lot to the seniors and Coach Brennan to beat them in their home field."

KICKING OFF THE SEASON

Ability and speed is what a sport needs, along with teamwork, and the Girls Varsity Soccer had it all. "We play to win, but we have fun when we play. It's exciting to play in a sport that is rapidly increasing in popularity across America. Some of my best high school memories were made with other members of the team," answered Jennifer Lund in response to the above. The kickers maintained the intensity and discipline needed to sustain their potent, short-passing game. "The team played with determination and dedication," one spectator said. The team maintained their competitiveness at the state level. Goalie Karina Doyle, and Defenders Peg Donath, Cynthia Papoutsakis, and Cathy Tamraz were outstanding team members. "The girls' soccer team defies words," responded Doyle. "We play to have fun, and because of our high level of enthusiasm — combined with talent — we have been able to remain competitive with some of the best teams in the state. That's what athletics are all about." Coach Joe Brennan is happy that the team has come along so far, "from club to varsity. From local recognition to all conference, all state and all-american. Now we are on the verge of an official state tournament.

FIELD BALLET

"If you have never seen ballet on grass, come see the Girl's J.V. Soccer Team," stated Coach Peter Zorn. The 20 member team worked diligently at perfecting their kicking, passing, blocking, and dribbling. When asked about their goals for the year, Coach Zorn replied, "We shall maintain and improve our classical style of soccer and continue developing superior caliber players for the Varsity level." The team's efforts did not go unnoticed. Some of the outstanding players were Patty Mahrhettick, Carlina Hines, and Vicky Magira.

HEADS UP IT'S A HOME RUN!

It's a warm and sunny day and your friends are sitting in the shade, drinking a coke, and discussing the up coming week-end events. Suddenly, you hear a sharp crack and you hear the umpire yell, "Home run!" You look up just in time to see the ball flying over the head of the center fielder. You pick up your belongings and head for home. Another Niles West victory.

If what you just read sounds familiar or if you lived through it every few days, then you were probably associated with the Girl's Softball Team. The team was made up of a group of girls who worked together like a family to secure a victory for West every time they went out on the field. Diane Mimp, senior softball player, states, "I like playing on the Niles West team because we are just that-a team, and not a group of individuals. Like one big family." The softball coach, new addition Paula Sfickas, stated, "I want to teach the players the fun of athletic competition. The combined talent and enthusiasm make coaching softball all worth while."

TOGETHERNESS, DEDICATION, AND SPIRIT SET THE SEASON'S RECORD

Tough workouts combined with togetherness, dedication, and spirit helped the girls' Swim Team through their long season. Though some meets and practices were missed because of the strike, the girls made it through the season with a record, and were able to place in the conference meet.

No matter what the score, the team stuck together and was always full of spirit, thanks to senior captains Katie Argetsinger and Karina Doyle. "It was a good season overall with victories over Niles North, Waukegaun East, and Elk Grove," stated Coach Don Larson. Doyle finished the season by placing lst in conference and 6th in sectionals. Senior Diane Rubenstein finished 5th in conference and l2th in sectionals, thanks to the coaching of Jodi Nebia.

Assistant Coach Cami Axelson also did a fine job keeping the junior varsity team together. "Though it is only my first year on the team, I'm already looking forward to the next season," stated Freshman Marny Pierini. Pierini, along with freshman Patty Tzortzis, competed at the varsity level and excelled in competition. Tzortzis placed 8th at the New Trier Freshman Invitational and l2th in conference. Other strong and promising swimmers were sophomore Wendy Martin who broke three school records and placed 4th in conference. "Next year looks promising because of the fact that so many of us are working out during the off season," said sophomore Mary Theodore.

SWIMMING

SWIMMERS BREAK RECORDS

The Boys Freshman Swimming team got off to a 3-0 start, with victories against Glenbrook South and Maine East. Coach Steve Ramseyer commented, "With a little practice and hardwork, we have a great chance to win conference." The highlight of the season was when they beat Deerfield, a top ranked team in conference. The team was led by a lot of swimmers including freshman Andy Browder.

The Junior Varsity Team opened the season with a 2 - 2 record. They had a tough early loss against Deerfield, losing only by two points, but came back with a strong victory against Norte Dame. The Team's best event was the relay race anchored by Sophomore Art Sanchez along with Junior Mike Gut who had competed in state last year.

The Varsity Team had a start of a 5-0 record. Winning their first five meets was difficult because their schedule included swimming against Maine East and Glenbrook South, two strong rivals. Senior Alan Dassow led the team to many victories and broke many records himself. "He was one of the best swimmers I have ever seen." Said Coach Don Larson. Other strong swimmers included Torrey Browder and John Tzortzis.

SWIMMING

Junior Edgar Sanchez takes a flying start from the blocks during practice. A good start is very important in a race.

NETTERS TAKE TO COURTS

Although the Boys' Tennis Team lost several outstanding varsity members this year, they still held in strong. Senior Craig Izenstark, junior Tom Malkin and freshman Eric "Scoop" Schulman showed outstanding talent and enthusiasm for the team. "The success of the Indians will depend on the development of our younger players, so we are counting on Izenstark and Malkin to help motivate the team," stated varsity Coach Frank Sacks.

"The goals that I have for the Frosh/Soph Team are to improve the strokes and skills of each player and to have a winning record for the season," added Frosh/Soph Coach Len Winans. Although winning was an important aspect, the development of sportsmanship and discipline was an important part of the team, also.

TENNIS

GOING THE DISTANCE

"Going the distance" was the goal of the thirty five member Girls' Track team. Mastering their skills, disciplining themselves, and working together like a family were all part of going the distance and becoming a winner.
The 1986 track team was not large in number, but it was strong in quality athletes with the potential to be conference champions. "We have many outstanding athletes on our team. If everyone performs to her ability, we should be a strong challenger for the conference championship. Also, several of our team members have potential to be state qualifiers," commented Coach Jean Armour.

"The reason I decided to join track was because I like to run and I like the intense competion. I also love to win. Niles West is a very nice school and I'm glad to be on its team," stated Senior Rena Andrews. Senior high jumper Sue Maliwanag added, "I have high expections for this year's track team, not only competitively, but non-competitively as well. I feel it is as important to have friends from other schools as being a good sportsman. The 1986 Track Team is very unified and family-like. I know that this year will be successful."

Track is an exciting sport where an athlete can test her ability against other individuals. Some outstanding members were Laura Oroni, Kathy Campbell, Sarah Kim, and Debbie Blonder.

TRACK

Sophomore Doug Hirsch-gives it his all to pass the baton to his teammate. The relay takes a lot of practice to get the baton off at the right time.

KEEPING THE PACE

"Distance and middle distance running takes more discipline and hard work than most other sports'," explained Track Coach Pat Savage. Because of this, practices were more difficult and demanding this year than in past years, which resulted in achieving the team's goal of faster times and better placing in the meets. Another factor that helped in achieving this goal was that the athletes seemed more dedicated. Their goals were more realistic and they had a winning attitude, as typified by Senior Rockey Lee, who stated, "I am involved in distance running because I love to run and because Coach Savage has motivated me to work hard to improve and to qualify for the state meets."

There were approximately 15 team members, headed by Coach Pat Savage and Assistant Coach Ron Campbell. Some of the outstanding team members were Senior Rocky Lee, Juniors Seung Lee and Mark Kim and Sophomore Steve Rosen.

Track is a team when individuals have success. So, having more successful individuals will give you a better team like the one here at Niles West!

Front Row: Coach Kuykendall, K. Smith, H. Yoon, H. Kang, F. Kim, R. Holton, L. Roth, M. Yu. Second Row: M. Cannella, A. Ebreo, R. Feldman, S. Kim, J. Jeong, T. Wlodarczyk, T. Hieber. Third Row: B. Speed, agility, and endurance are three characteristics a person needs to be on the track team. Sophomores Ben Yashon, Larry Meyer, Doug Hirsh, Steve Rosen, and Scott Poulos strongly exemplify these characteristics. Coach Campbell, track team coach for all levels, was asked how the track team would do this year. He replied, "We are in year two of a rebuilding program. Our goal is to be competitive in invitational meets on the frosh/soph level." In its first two meets of the season the track team was victorious over both Sullivan and Bakesville.

As he finishes his last lap, senior Rocky Lee kicks it in. Rocky was the co-captain of track along with Jay Swidler.

SPIKERS "SET" FOR NEXT SEASON

From the 50's beach parties to the Olympic Games, all the way to the Indians of Niles West, volleyball has sure come a long way. Going down in history are the many accomplishments of the team. Two of their games were televised on cable for their many fans who were unable to see the action live. The team came in first place at the New Trier Summer End Tournament. Even with their many achievements, the team went through many rough times during the season, one of which was the strike. "Several members of the team hadn't reached their full potential yet, hopefully, next year their goals will be reached," stated Coach Paula Sfickas.

"The JV team had a challenging season with many tough teams competing in their conference, but that did not stop their dedication and enthusiasm. Sophomores Kim McAlister, Karen Janessa, and Karla Hellestrae, were especially outstanding and showed strength and stability throughout the whole season. According to Ray Carr the head coach for five years, "The strike and the shift of our practice in the North/south gym which is much smaller, caused many problems."

GRAPPLERS "OUT WEIGH" OPPONENTS

No guts, no glory is the slogan of the Niles West Varsity and JVI wrestling teams. According to sophomore and varsity wrestler Greg Rudin, "We have no more talent than other schools we just stick it out." Working hard in the free weight room and hydrofitness center were daily parts of the rigorous training wrestlers went through. It paid off.

Niles West has won many conference titles and regional titles. According to senior Barry Albalch, "Winning is part of our thinking; it has been a tradition at Niles West."

This season's team had a strong nucleus of returning varsity seniors, including Barry Albach, Scott Binstock, Dean Bravos, Eric Nutting, Mike Wiltgen, and Doug St. Marie. The season's goal according to returning state qualifier Dean Bravos, was to make it down state as a team. "We are on a campaign to Champaign." Champaign, Illinois, is where the state tournament is held annually.

Struggling for position is Senior Dean Bravos. Coach Porter and teammates look on.

WRESTLERS STRIVE FOR EXCELLENCE

Niles West is one of a few select high schools in Illinois where the Freshman and JVII sophomore Wrestling Teams practice with the varsity. Caoch Porter felt that "In the long run they will learn more, when they wrestle varsity they won't be awed, they will be accostomed to wrestling top-notch wrestlers. According to freshman Bobby Pine, "I've learned a lot from wrestling with varsity stars like Dean Bravos and Scott Binstock. Freshman Eric Phillips felt that "it makes freshman tougher, wrestling with older, more experienced wrestlers.

STUDENTS ABROAD

Want to travel to different countries around the world and experience their cultures? Join the AFS club! The American Field Service is an organization to join for new and incredible experiences. During the school year exchange students from countries around the world live at a student's house. The exchange students are 'adopted' by the student's family. The exchange students attend school and are able to experience first hand the American way of life. Likewise, in the summer for three months, students from West travel to countries all around the world. They have the same oppurtunity to experience new cultures and lifestyles.

The co-sponsors for AFS were Mr. Murphy and Mrs. Carr. The President of the club was Mr. Kerstein. Meetings were held various days after school and on Wednesday nights. Some of the club's fundraisers were selling raffle tickets and selling Halloween-O-Grams. One activity the group participated in was going downtown and showing the exchange students around the city. The club's goals are to raise more money to send more students away and to get more students involved. The two students going away this year are Patricia Kerstein and Andrea Wollenberg.

STUDENTS HELP

"Hunger is Ethiopia, Love is Peace." H.E.L.P., a caring group with concern about the famine in Ethiopia, X-mas-carolled through the hallways, sponsored bake sales, and had a series of concerts to raise funds for the starving in Ethiopia.

"I think it's important that students express an interest in and capacity to sacrifice for other people, beyond their immediate environment," commented sponsor Mr. Tom McMahon. The H.E.L.P. organization was open to any student concerned about the famine. "When I read that 40,000 people will die a day, of hunger, I cried. I was so moved that it stirred me up to do something and get people involved," stated the club's president senior Letitia Cadavid. Sophomore Dessie Atsaves added, "It seems that I have all the material things, but there is a great feeling when someone gives." Giving was an important achievement that was accomplished by the H.E.L.P. organization.

A "GUT" CLUB!

The German Club, sponsored by Mr. Brink, took part in many activities. They participated in fund raisers, special sporting events, activities with the German exchange students, and the annual Christmas party. At this event, members get to eat all different kinds of German dishes.

The members were enthusiastic about their participation in the club. Senior Rachel Trachtenberg said, "I've taken German for four years and I want to be active in something having to do with Germany."

Approximately 25-30 students participated in the club. The officers were Senior Laurie Chertow, president; juniors Mark Gussin, vice-president; Lenore Estrada, secretary; and Erika Taraschewsky, treasurer.

PARLEZ-VOUS?

The French Club this year consisted of twenty-five students including President Andri Georgakopoulos, Vice-President Sue Lee, Secretary Cecile Yoon, and Treasurer Karla Dubey. The group met after school usually once a week. They planned many fundraisers to raise money for more French cultural trips. They held bake sales and sold Christmas ornaments and decorations. The group planned a trip to Great America and a French dinner for the members of the club. This year the French Club had much more involvement with other clubs. An international dinner was planned involving many different clubs and organizations. "Being in the French Club is a good way to meet new people and learn more about the French culture," stated Senior member Lisa Falleroni.

ANI- MIDABER - EVERET

"Shalom," or "peace," were one of the many Hebrew words spoken at Israeli Club meetings. Activities included raising funds to send to Israel, planning field trips to Israeli Film Festivals, and having holiday parties. "The purpose of the club is to serve as a social gathering where Israeli subjects are discussed. In addition to parties to celebrate different important occasions of the year, the club had cultural, social, and educational objectives," stated sponsor Alex Miron. "Its a chance for many students to get together and discuss different things about Israel in a social environment," said member Cheryl Lanski.

HELLENIC CLUB PROVES TRADITION

Do you like gyros and togas? Then you might be interested in the Niles West Hellenic Club. The club, now five years old, met once a month in the evening to talk and make plans for upcoming events. This was all done with the help of Mrs. Panos, sponsor of the club.

Some of the activities the club participated in were a Greek dinner, fundraisers, International night, and the annual bike-a-thon. The bike-a-thon raised funds to help children from Greece come to the U.S. and have operations.

Everyone is invited to join the Hellenic Club. You don't have to be Greek to have a good time participating in the activities. Maria Psyhogios and Sylvia Karalokas stated that the purpose of the club was "To promote Greek heritage in Niles West and to get non-Greeks better acquainted with Greek customs."

There were approximately 30 students involved in the club. Last year's officers were Andria Georgakopoulos, president; Angie Antonakos, vice-president; and Helen Georgakopoulos, treasurer.

CASA CENTRAL

Casa Central ... have you heard of it? If you were a member of the Spanish Club you would have. You'd also know about activities for raising money for Mexican and Columbian relief. Sponsors Mrs. Georgieve and Miss O'Rielly were very enthusiastic about the Spanish Club. They praised the club saying, "It was an activity where students found out more about people and their lives in Spanish-speaking countries, and where they could become acquainted with students who have similar interests." Treasurer, Senior Judy De Acetis, agreed. "I thought the best way to be with others who shared my interest in the language would be to join the Spanish Club." Other members of the board included President Steve Le Hew, Vice President Jill Colen, and secretary Nissin Behar.

SPANISH HONOR SOCIETY

The purpose of Spanish Honor Society was, according to senior member Adam Dolinko, "to help perpetuate academic achievement in the foreign language subject area." The society was made up of 23 students, all of whom had completed at least five semesters of Spanish with a B+ to A- average or better. Members participated in the International Fair, coordinated by the Foreign Language Department, and they attended a Spanish play. "The Spanish Honor Society has proven themselves to be excellent students and to have a deep interest in the beautiful Spanish language," stated sponsor Herminia Lopez.

NO OTHER WAY; CHECK MATE!

What was different about the Chess Club in the 1985-86 school year? Nothing. In fact, this club wouldn't have had it any other way. They got together for one purpose, and one purpose only: chess, the sport of Kings.

The Niles West Chess Club, a member of the North Suburban Chess League, played twelve matches in the 1985-86 season. Although the team wasn't as strong as had been anticipated, due to the loss of two members from the previous season, the club finished respectably. In April, the club ended the season with the State High School Tournament at Evanston High School. The dedication so often associated with the Chess Club was best summed up by Fred Delphin, captain of the team, who said, "I wish to contribute all I can to improve the game."

TIMELY TOPICS

The prospect of nuclear war, the Reagan-Gorbachev summit meeting, the comprehensive test ban treaty and the crisis in Central America were just some of the main topics discussed by Current Event Club members last year. "The club proved a unique forum for the discussion of those relevant issues," explained senior participant Eric Kopfstein.

Members not only expanded their knowledge concerning world issues through group interviews, discussions and films, but were also urged to form individual opinions. "The club encouraged critical thinking, exposing students to more controversial subjects than they would normally encounter in day-to-day classroom activities," verified Tom McMahon, the club's sponsor.

Approximately 20 students participated in the bi-weekly, Wednesday afternoon meetings. As the young club's exposure slowly grew, McMahon clarified that he viewed the club as an adequate "supplement to classroom activities" whose main intent was the expansion of knowledge through the interpretation and discussion of recent world developments.

Chris Samuel, Sheryl Shimanovsky, Rebecca Kolber

NOW HEAR THIS . . .

Every day, every morning, an all too familiar "ding" followed by an update of the news of interest was heard throughout the Niles West halls and homerooms. They were brought to us by Cheryl Shimanovsky, Chris Samuel, and Rebecca Kolber-the P.A. Announcers.

Rebecca Kolber said, "I enjoy this activity because if I'm in a cheerful mood in the morning, I make everyone sick."

Sheryl Shimanovsky said, "I love shocking people by telling them I'm a "Morning Mouth". They don't believe me and usually ask me to prove it."

To add a bit of spice to their morning routine, they began making up little tunes to play on the xylophone before they read the announcements. On Fridays, they said "Have a good weekend" instead of "Have a good day." And they did this all to make the unbearable mornings here at West a little less painful.

SADD PROMOTES SAFETY

Sponsor Paul VanCleave stated, "During the last three years since we organized S.A.D.D. at Niles West, the students have worked hard to accomplish the goals of S.A.D.D., which are to save their own lives and the lives of others, to educate the students concerning the problem of drinking and driving, and to increase public awareness and prevention of this problem everywhere.

U OF C COACH REALLY HELPS

A new resolution involving the quality of water in the United States was just one of the many changes Niles West traditional debaters faced this past year. The most significant change involved the addition of new head coach Scott Durschlag, a student at the University of Chicago. "Getting a new coach really helped our team," explained senior Sonja Bychkov, the team's president. "Scott brought a lot of new ideas and worked really hard with us."

Another change involved the team's expansion to the Lincoln/Douglas Debate. Under the instruction of co-coach James Batts, a few members participated in this new form, which, unlike traditional, involved the discussion of moral issues based on liberty, equality and justice, rather than factual ones concerning nuclear war and water contamination. The L.D. debating was done on an individual basis without the need of a partner as traditional form required. "I thought the opportunity to finally participate in L.D. was great," commented one varsity team member. "It offered me the opportunity to see what I could really accomplish on my own." Although the traditional sector of the team failed to reach its goal of establishing a national contender to represent West in any of the three competing divisions, members such as sophomore Greg Rosow felt "next year will prove more rewarding."

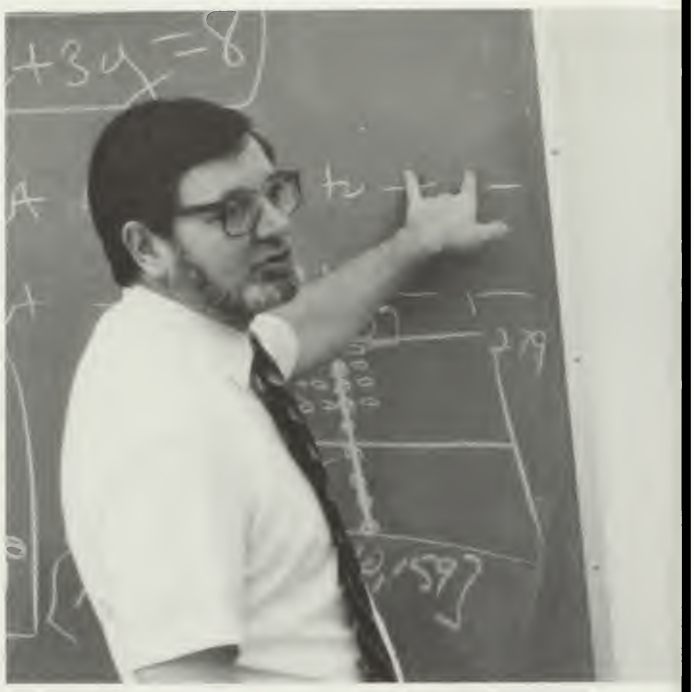
MATH TEAM

ADDS IT UP

Over the years, the Math Team has expanded its number of participants and its involvement in competitions. The 50-75 students included a variety of freshmen, sophomores and upperclassmen. "It is enjoyable working with math team members because we spend our entire energy on problem solving," stated one of the team's sponsors.

"Since I'm not taking any math courses this year, I get my "dose" on the math team, plus, I have a lot of fun," said senior and club Vice-President Andy Mills. "Taking math exams may be a strange way to spend an evening, but for me, Math Team has been interesting, challenging, and rewarding," stated club president senior Jerry Kang.



Mr. Filliman helps the Math Team prepare for a meet. Members of the team had to practice for hours after school to get ready for statewide and national competitions.

A STRONG, HEAVY COMPETITION

Mr. Geis tallies the scores after an intense practice for the Academic Bowl Team. His first year as co-sponsor, Mr. Geis has contributed an enormous amount of help to the team.

If you have a strong stomach for heavy competition, then you are probably an avid follower of the Academic Competition Club. The club is a compilation of sharp, well-rounded members with quick recall. Ian Faloona's opinion of himself and his teammates was this, "We are all a bunch of nervous basket cases because each question has the paramount intensity of a $500 Double Jeopardy." The club tried a few new things this year. First on the list was the new coach, Carl Geis. Commented Geis, "I was very excited about coaching the club. We had some very adept members this year." As the result of an exciting new coach and the well-qualified, experienced coach, Mrs. Shapiro, the club was psyched for the Stevenson Academic Bowl, the Hillsboro and Bradley Bourbonnais Bowls, and national contests in which the club competed via computer. Although the club began meeting in late November, most competitions took place in the spring.

Senior Kim Liou does some quick figuring on paper, then pushes his buzzer. His thinking has been a valuable asset for the club.

FLY THE FRIENDLY SKIES

Once again the Aeronautics Club flew the skies. The leaders of this year's flight plan were pilot, junior Young-Sik Whang; co-pilot, junior Dawn Illing and air traffic controller, science teacher Wayne Rogoski.

The two general types of aircraft in flight and under construction were rockets and line-controlled airplanes, both of which were flown on a regular basis. Sponser Wayne Rogoski stated, "The motto of this club is 'The sky's the limit.' We have proven this time and time again with such successes as Slotkowski, our dirigble, and our Polack series of nine-foot rockets."

The club hoped to challenge the crafting and flying skills of the crew by staging competitions. They also took time to visit the Air Museum, hobby conventions, and military aid stations.

MCC PROMOTES SMOKEOUT

The Medical Careers Club's big activity was the Great American Smoke-Out. Students and faculty were supposed to give up their bad habit of smoking, for one day. When asked what he thought about the Great American Smoke-Out, Junior Tom Abelson replied, "The smokeout was a very groovy idea, and I wish the period (to help smokers) would be longer." The other activities planned by the 20 members of the club were helping with the blood drive, planning a fund-raising activity, and hosting speakers in medical careers. The officers were President Mike Edwards, Vice-President Debbie Virchinsky, and Secretary Cecile Yoon.

Ecology Club members, Tracy Rialing, Mr. Firak, Steve Frankel, Don Gutterman, Michele Reitman.

ECOLOGY CLUB EDUCATIONAL

The Ecology Club was not only educational, but it was also a lot of fun. "We usually have field trips to places of our choice. We have fun with friends and learn in the meantime," explained club member Dawn Illing.

The club was lead by Gerald Firak, teacher of biology and earth science at Niles West, and has seven members. This makes it small enough to go without club officers and to make decisions by concensus.

Ecology is the study of living organisms, plants and animals, and their relationship to the environment. Basicall, it's the study of nature.

The club made several field trips, including a trip to Lincoln Park Zoo and a visit to the Adler Planetarium to see the Halley's Comet presentation. The members also planned to take a spring trip to the Starved Rock area. In addition, the club also did some environmental studies at the school prairie. As for benefits to its members, Steve Frankel put it this way, "The Ecology Club taught me to appreciate, instead of trying to exploit, nature."

WEST OF EDENS

So you enjoy creative challenges? Do you love to see your name in print? Are you an artist? Do you spend all your spare time writing poems and stories? Do you constantly walk around snapping pictures of anything that catches your eye? Would you like to be involved in an extracurricular activity that meets practically every Thursday after school? If you answered "yes" to even one of these questions, you should consider joining West of Edens. West of Edens is an annual art/literary magazine composed of original submissions from the students of Niles West. Last year was the first year the magazine was published in color instead of black and white. Submissions were judged by all members of West of Edens including: Editor-in-chief, June Yang; Literary Editor/Sue Lee; Art and Photography editor, Helen Shapiro; and Julia Goldin, Co-publicity editor. West of Edens came out in May after much hard work. All grade levels were encouraged to join.

NHS STUDENTS: More

Than Just A Name

The National Honor Society is a service organization that helps benefit the community. It was made up of fifty-five students of all ages. Officers included President Kim Liou, Vice-president Andy Mills, Secretary David Rubin and Treasurer Torrey Browder. The NHS helped others by giving parties for disadvantaged children, sponsoring a blood drive, and collecting canned food and toys for needy citizens. They also helped promote school spirit with a round-robin racquetball tournament and a junior high spelling bee. Cuneyt Fiezoulof stated, "The National Honor Society promotes scholarship, leadership, service and growth of character for its members."

TUTORS CLUB

GIVE THEIR TIME

Do you need help? The tutoring club is there to do just that, help people. Last year 27 members gave their free time and stayed after school to help fellow students with their studies. The five board members, Kim Liou, Jerry Kang, Nancy Goren, Natalie Medbray, and Nina Liou, handled the scheduling, matching those needing help with tutors who were free the same periods. Stating why he joined the club was Jerry Kang, "Since tutoring is mutually beneficial, I have learned a great deal by helping other students in their classwork." It is evident that the Tutors Club is an organization of hard-working and intelligent students who are willing to help others.

"Binding Arbitration Ends Strike," "Mistrial Declared in Richardi Case," "Should AIDS Victims Attend School? Disease Explained," and "Gangs -- are They a Threat?" were just some of the eye-catching headlines used by West Word editors in addressing many of the controversial subjects which developed during the 1985 school year. Experimenting with new graphic designs and expanding upon its editorial staff, the West Word created 16 quality issues including a special holiday issue and a senior issue. According to West Word Adviser Jerome Orr, the newspaper's improvement was the result of a hard-working staff of reporters who produced well-written stories, and a diligent editorial board which included: co-editor-in-chiefs, seniors Rhonda Bergman and Jonathan Lisco; news editor, junior Diane Smason; editorial directors, sophomore Bryan Mittelman and senior June Yang; features editors, senior John Axelrad and sophomore Marc Fienberg; business editor, senior Garrett Fienberg; sports editors, sophomore Larry Mills and senior Judy Zemsky; copy editor, senior Andy Mills; and circulation editor, junior Jeanie Ahn. "The West Word was fortunate to have several four-year staff members and editors as well as a seasoned group of fact-finding reporters," Orr commented.

25 YEARS TO "PROOF!"

During the course of the year, our staff has had many problems. With a two week strike, production was drastically held back, and it was hard to get back into the swing of things. Fantastic staff members held up during those hard times when deadlines had to be made, and editors always kept in touch with their staff. 25 years of celebration is not an easy thing to bring together, especially when fashions and fads have changed so much, but our silver anniversary book has much to offer, and much to cherish. Thank you staff for trying your hardest when times were really tough. Stephanie Leader, Laurie Adams; Co-Editors-in-Chief.

PICTURE PERFECT

Recording history in the form of photography is no task for a person who lacks dedication. The process of taking pictures takes hours of work in the darkroom after the smiles have been captured. But for those who enjoy this sort of thing, the Photography Club provided a forum for fun.

The club expanded its membership greatly this year. According to Photography Club President Joseph J. Born, "We have members who are nearly professionals and members who don't even know what it's all about. It's a fun way to learn about photography."

ART COUNCIL; A BRUSH STROKE

"Art is an outlet to express yourself," explains sponsor Gary Davis. That's exactly what Art Council is about. Students of this club have worked independently on their projects and visited such places as the Art Expo and Navy Pier. Accomplishments such as the mural on the cafeteria wall by Steve Lee was an example of creativity displayed by club members. Gary Davis' goal to "reach out to students who may not take art, but wish to after school" has been accomplished.

Senior Steven Lee uses his talent to design our new cafeteria wall.

LEADERS OF THE PACK

Leaders is a unique program that helps develop the leadership qualities of selected sophomore, junior, and senior students who applied for entrance as freshmen. They continue to work and develop leadership skills in the class itself. Stated sponsor Ms. Heeren, "I enjoy working with students involved in the Leaders' program. They are generally enthusiastic, motivated, and committed individuals." Junior Helaine Miller added, "The purpose of this activity was to teach leadership not only in the gym, but in life." Each Leader spent at least six weeks leading freshman or sophomore class. Stated junior David Ivezic, "Leader's gym class gave us the opportunity to lead other situations later in life."

N-CLUB-COMMITMENT

"N-Club is an organization of young men and women who have shown more than their share of commitment to athletics and school spirit," stated N-Club sponsor Brian Katzman.

To be a member of this proud group, student athletes from any sport must have earned a varsity letter.

N-Club members raised funds by working the candy and popcorn concessions for girls' home basketball games. They sponsored an all-school volleyball tournament and the annual N-Club vs. faculty basketball game.

"N-Club is a good organization for student athletes who want to get involved in school activities," concluded senior member Mike Kirchens.

RIDERS:

UNDYING SPIRIT!

Riders show their undying spirit!

Honking horns in front of houses at 12 midnight on Thursday nights may be annoying to some of the nearby homeowners, but to Niles West Midnight Riders, it's a way to "Psych" the football players for the next day's game. Every night before a football game, 25 students, all members of Midnight Riders, drove to each Varsity player's house with personal posters and at least twenty rolls of toilet paper. Very quietly they disposed of all the toilet paper in the player's trees, grass, doors, and everything else they could throw it around. Without a noise the girls would get back into their cars. It was not until they were all ready to leave that they simultaneously honked their horns. The loud honking continued until they were at least a block away. "We had a great time t-ping for the players. We had one of the largest Midnight Riders groups yet. I think everyone got close as a group-not all those little cliques. It helped our class as a whole a lot," said senior Cathy Tamraz.

Meetings to organize and make posters were held once a week at Tamraz's house. Each member had a Midnight Rider jersey which was worn on the days of games. Member Debbie Shugall felt, "I think that doing the players' houses really helped to boost their spirits. It made them feel that we really supported them and cared if they won or lost."

TIMERS "SET" THE RECORDS

Riders admire the job they have done; all with Posh Puff toilet paper!

Every second counted as the Timers' Club set off another year. The Timers' Club, sponsored by Shirly Daniel, hosted all of the home swim meets. They helped out by setting up the timing pads, putting out the chairs, and timing the meets. When asked why he joined, senior John Tzortzis said, "It's the best way to cheer for the team." With the Timers' Clubs help, the meets were well organized and ran smoothly. According to Daniel, "Without the timers, we could not have run the home swim meets."

GUARD CLUB TAKES RESPONSIBILITY

Art students set up display.

While most of us enjoyed sleeping late on Saturday mornings, the Niles West Guard Club was wide awake and ready to teach three forty-five minute sessions of swimming lessons to children. Many students were involved and each was given five to eight children, from ages three to thirteen. The members of the club took responsibility for their understudies and enjoyed the task. They went from teaching kids how to float to teaching the four basic strokes: back, breast, butterfly, and freestyle. The thirteen members, sponsored by Shirley Daniel, gained a sense of real responsibility. The Guard Club was kind of a teaching class, too, as senior Nicki Theodore said, "I enjoyed helping people learn, I want to pursue teaching."

"Without the girls our meets would have been a disaster," said sophomore George Santillan about the wrestlettes. The wrestlettes not only kept score, but cheered on the team, gave the wrestlers a lot of support, and brought fans to the meets. They were the wrestlers' biggest fans. The wrestlettes also sponsored Parents' Night and sold taffy apples.

There were approximately 60 girls, with no division of grade. There were more people, expecially underclassmen, then last year. "Being a wrestlette was not only fun, but a great way to get involved in sports and show our school spirit," said sophomores Karin Orsic and Rachel Greenspan. Vice-president was Georgia Sotiropoulos.

The president was Aida Santillan; the secretary was Chris Miller and treasurer was Cynthia Papoutsakis. Said about them by sponsor Shirley LaManna, "Under their leadership we had a great working organization."

SQUADS HAVE SPIRIT!

Enthusiasm, energy, and school spirit were displayed throughout the past year by the varsity, sophomore, and freshmen cheerleaders of Niles West. They did a fantastic job of arousing spirit at all football and basketball games, as well as at pep assemblies, the Homecoming parade, and many other activities. As varsity coach Marlene Feldman stated, "The cheerleaders' dedication to school spirit is illustrated, in part, by their many tireless hours of practice perfecting routines. They are an energetic asset to Niles West."

The varsity squad with the help of captains Carrie Kaplan and Kris Justesen, did an exceptional job at all their games.

The freshmen cheerleaders, who were new to all this, worked well together considering the short amount of time they had from tryouts to their first game. They got themselves organized very quickly and although it was difficult to appear energetic at 9:30 A.M., they aroused plenty of spirit and got the crowd going.

Sophomores were also successful at getting the crowd cheering. Sophomore Lena Quilici stated, "I think it's important because it gives me a feeling of being a vital part of the school. It's great to be on the squad."

After their performance at the Twilight Pep Assembly, the pom-pon squad shows that their flashlight routine not only looked great, but that it was also a lot of fun.

HALF TIME SENSATIONS

Kick Up Your Heels

Thanks to sponsors Lori Barranco and Nancy Tuzzdino, one of the more spirited organizations this year was the pom pon squad. Not only did they participate in all game half-times for the football and basketball seasons, but they were also involved with pep assemblies and the Homecoming parade. Along with these activities, they performed with the marching band in two competitions, taking second and seventh place. Said Barranco about her girls, "I have twenty-two of the best daughters anyone could ask for. They're independent girls that get things done." The squad worked together to make a success of all their activities. They are like one happy family. Said senior Rachel Garcia, "I've been on the squad for three years and it's been the most rewarding part of my high school career." And junior Devra Resnick summed it up saying, "Not only do we perform together, but the whole squad is like a group of sisters. We all get along great." The pom pon squad proved that this was their year by taking all first-place awards at camp, perfecting new and harder routines, and performing with a flair that was their's alone. Their greatest feat was promoting school spirit with enthusiasm that no one could equal.

All smiles are senior pom pon captains Yung-me Suh and Jenni Holt. These girls have worked hard throughout the year to keep the squad together.

MORNING BASKETBALL - A WORKOUT!

Twenty-five years ago counselor Dr. Walter Cocking introduced a beneficial fitness program to fellow teachers, counselors, and administrators from Niles West, as well as to those of other schools in the district. In the wee hours of the morning, four to twelve people awake and head to the Niles West gymnasium for a fun-filled game of basketball. The game not only keeps them in shape, but helps them to relieve the pressure of the upcoming day at work. Dr. Cocking stated, when asked of his personal benefits from the program, "I enjoy playing, I like the competition, not to mention it keeps me in shape."

SPIKERS ON WEDNESDAY

Wednesday nights, what happens on Wednesday nights? Nothing usually, but for two months, between the hours of seven and nine p.m., students banned together to form co-ed volleyball teams for the Wednesday night volleyball league. Although perhaps not the most serious competition in the school, many kids enjoyed the afterschool activity.

A TEACHER'S HELPER: LAB ASSISTANTS

Have you ever wondered how your science room gets so clean? Or why the test tubes sparkle in the light? If you think the teachers or custodians do this, your wrong. No, little elves don't come out at the stroke of midnight. Lab Assistants are the people who do these very important duties. Science teacher Gerald Firak said, "They are very helpful and I would be up to my head in dirty test tubes if it wasn't for these wonderful students." Lab Assistant Marc Slima states, "I love science and being a lab assistant helps me to increase my knowledge of the sciences."

FRIENDS ARE THERE TO HELP

The Niles West Peer Counseling/Student Leadership Program was set up to provide an opportunity for students to discuss common concerns and share opinions. According to David Lee, Niles West Social worker and head of the program, "The goal of the program is to help students to develop a more positive self-concept, make good judgments, develop better social skills, and to become more responsible."

Participating students met once a week after school for an hour. At the meetings students learned about problem solving, decision making and group activities and experiences.

Next year student leaders will go to study halls to recruit students. The peer counseling groups will meet once a week for 10-12 weeks.

GUARD SHOWS COLORS

The colorful backgrounds at the home football games were provided by the Niles West Color Guard. The Color Guard, consisting of about 20 members, not only performed in many home football games, but also marched in the Homecoming Parade. Competitions were also done both at Whitewater Wisconsin and at Marango, Illinois. Long hours and hard work were involved throughout their long season, Color Guard is fun because it's not something everyone can do," stated Captain Joanna Colt. Though next year seemed far away, routines and practices for the 1986-87 season were already underway.

PRODUCTION BEAMS UNDER SPOTLIGHT

The curtain was raised and the Theater Department gave its all. They beamed in the spotlight with such productions as the student-produced musical, "Celebration", the Children's Theater production, "A Salute to Walt Disney", and the spring musical "Oliver".

Not only did the department keep busy producing shows, they also attended two professional theater performances and travelled to Muncie, Indiana, for a Thespian Festival- in the spring. Junior Heather Doolittle stated, "Theater is a lot of fun because you can meet many fun and interesting people with the same talents and interests as you." Officers of the Theater Department were President Andy Mills, Vice-president Cheryl Lanski, Secretary Rebecca Kolber, Treasurer Howard Tiersky, and Fund-Raiser Helaine Miller.

Adam Telengater, an eighth grader at Lincoln Junior High, gave a smashing performance as Oliver. He hopes to continue his theater involvement in Niles West.

The Ushers' Club was a great way to meet people and have fun. Besides ushering for performances and meetings, the club held a fund-raiser and planned social events. Ushers could be identified by the new sashes they wore as uniforms.

The 1985-86 officers of the Ushers' Club were President Marina Fialko, Vice-President Doreen Smith, Secretary Sheila Patel, and Treasurer Meena Ravella. The club sponsor was Miss Klinger. Said President Marina Fialko, "The Ushers' Club was a wonderful way to meet new people while doing a great service to the school. Club member Tania Lee added, "The Ushers' Club was a special organization to be involved in because the members were so friendly and willing to devote their time to provide a necessary service to the school."

TECH SERVICE CLUB: VITAL FOR ACTORS

"I've joined this club to see my ideas be used by actors. There's nothing better than to see something that you have invisioned come to life on stage," explained Technical Service Club member Jenny Shedroff. This club, also known as "Crew", involved 25 students who were responsible for setting up the microphones, working the lights and sound, and hiring speakers to come to Niles West. These students also built from scratch all the sets for all the shows, including "Celebration," "A Salute to Walt Disney," and "Oliver." The sponsor of this group, Miss Philbin, explained that decisions were made by group consensus rather than by officers.

"EXPRESSIONS"

THROUGH HARD WORK

The name "Expressions" says it all. Although this is the club's first year, the success and membership was outstanding. Performances included the Winter Festival, Boston, Pops, Fall Choral Concert and many others. They also sponsored the smash hit "Star Search" which involved many North Shore high school students.

The success of "Expressions" goes to the help of choreographer Gretchen Glader, and to Ms. Owens, the vocal director who helped a great deal with having such a well rounded swinging choir. "Next year looks like a good one, as long as we stay together," stated freshman Rachel Posner.

"FORWARD MARCH"

BAND PLACES AT SECTIONALS

A call for "forward march" echoed throughout the football field as the Niles West Marching Band enjoyed one of it's finest years. For the first time the band competed in marching competitions. In a national tournament at Whitewater, Wisconsin, the marching band placed seventh. At Marengo, Illinois at a sectional competition, the band placed second. Also the percussion section went on their first competition ever, placing fourth. All of this and they also marched in two parades and every home football game. "Being involved with such a large group of people who are devoted to the same goals teaches a great deal about family, people and most of all, pride," stated band president senior David Rubin.

After the marching band season, they moved indoors to become the symphonic and concert bands. The transition is difficult from loud, marching music to soft, flowing concert music. Both bands performed at the Holiday Festival, Boston Pops Concert, and played for graduation. The Marching and symphonic bands keep hopeful outlooks that years to come will be as successful as 1986.

ORCHESTRA PROVIDES

GREAT FORMS OF ART

Concert Orchestra, conducted by Ted Kaitchuck, performed various concerts throughout the year. Performances included the Fall String Orchestra Concert, the Open House Pop String Performances and the Boston Pops Dinner Concert, as well as the tour to Cleveland and Boston.

Stated sponsor Ted Kaitchuck, "The orchestra provides opportunity for students to interpret the great works of music as an art form, and develop skills to enrich their lives through music both in college and in adult life through community orchestra." The orchestra officers, President Albert Rhee, Vice-President Charles Snell, Treasurer Jason Msu and Secretary Nicki Theodore, helped the busy year run smoothly.

Well over 30 talented and dedicated students were involved in Concert Choir. Sponsor Ms. Owens stated, "We have tripled the number of performances of the Concert Choir this year, as compared to 1984-1985. That has been a primary goal of mine." Included in those performances was the addition of a fall choral concert, a dessert concert in the Oakton Street Lobby, and a combined concert with Niles North. "I'm involved in Concert Choir because I enjoy singing and I meet many people who share the same interest that I do," stated senior Elizabeth Kelley.

Practicing to perfect their voices are Marna Buettner, Sabina Puthusseril, Ami Schwartz, Liz Kelley, and Amy Roma. The concert choir worked hard to prepare for their annual Christmas performance.

What's the best way to start the year off on a good note? Sing in choir! With the help of sponsor Sherri Owens, the Girls' Ensemble strove to improve their voices. And it was evident that their dedication and hard work paid off. From the Fall Festival to the May Concert, their voices were heard loud and clear. The choir hopes to attract even more people in the future so the altos and sopranos are more evenly balanced. Junior Michelle Cohen expressed the enthusiasm of the group saying, "Singing is fun and interesting, and we learn a wide variety of songs. Each person is given an equal opportunity to sing by our wonderful teacher Mrs. Owens."

Maritess Tamunday and Julie Cho practice non-stop for their upcoming show. Through this hard work and enthusiasm, the girls added their spark to the performance.

DANCE COMPANY

CULTIVATE MOVES

Members of the Orchesis Dance Company worked hard to produce their annual show. "Maneuvers" was presented earlier last year, in the fall instead of the spring, to allow dancers time to rehearse all new numbers before the spring Music Department Tour. Sponsor Gretchen Glader said, "Putting together a production such as ours is a learning experience from beginning to end. Being a dancer means trying to cultivate the body of an athlete and the mind of an artist." Officers included President Nancy Goren, Vice President Ellen Kim, Secretary Elaine Barrington, and Treasurer Stephanie Pritzker.

SOPHOMORES BUSY!

Sophomore Class Cabinet, under the advisory of Mrs. Krone, was very busy. All thirty sophomore students in this organization, including Benjie Malkin as president, Marc Fienberg as vice-president, Missy Rabin as treasurer, and Stefani Ivisic as secretary helped in some way to make sure the class of '88 had a successful year.

Their first major activitiy was planning the Frosh/Soph mixer in September. Cindy Levine enjoyed that activity, remarking that she joined cabinet because "I wanted to help plan for dances." With her efforts and many others, the dance was a total success.

The next activity on their agenda was to make a spirit panel for Homecoming. It took a lot of work, but it was worth it since they took Ist place in the spirit panel contest!

In November, for a fundraiser, they had the original idea of selling bagged popcorn. The popcorn sold fast and the cabinet benefitted from the profits that were made.

ALL NEW GOV'T.

Planning for bake sales, the Frosh-Soph Mixer, the volleyball tournament, and grade level activities are a few of the accomplishments of Freshman Class Cabinet. According to sponsor Ms. Nash, "Freshman Cabinet is a great way for students to get involved from the very beginning of their high school years." The officers were President Stacy Lutz, Vice-President Fehlyn Tulen, Secretary Rachel Cohen, and Treasurer Mindy Grossberg. Although this was all new to them, the 30-member club did a great job and had a very successful year.

SENIORS STAY ON TOP.

Senior Cabinet had planned many activities such as the bake sales, the Homecoming float, a Christmas party, the Battle of the Bands, and the Senior Breakfast, for their class.

Club sponsor Sheri Owens said, "I have enjoyed my first year as sponsor for the Senior Class Cabinet. The groups dedication to the school and community provides excellent leadership for the class of '86."

Secretary Jordan Cramer stated, "The reason I am involved in this activity is to do good things representing our class for the school and community."

President Mark Poulakidas said, "The purpose of Senior Cabinet is to promote spirit and have fun by planning activities which serve both the school and the community."

JUNIORS PLAN FUND RAISERS

As is tradition, the responsibility for planning Prom was placed in the hands of Junior Class Cabinet. Part of that responsibility entailed fundraising with all profits going to the Prom.

Fundraisers included selling taffy apples on two separate occasions, having a bake sale, the "After Game Madness" dance, showing a feature film in the auditorium and running concessions at the Battle of the Bands.

The twenty-plus members of Junior Class Cabinet and their sponsor, Mrs. Linda Horwitz, worked patiently and diligently through the weeks to organize and develop, "Once In A Lifetime," Prom 1986. This work included inventing a theme, choosing a favor, designing the bid, and picking a Prom logo, as well as planning the details of the dance itself.

Junior Class Cabinet raised a substantial amount of money to help defeat the costs of the fine Prom they had planned. In the words of Junior Class Cabinet President James Van Osdol, "The key to our successes were in the ideas and hard work of everyone involved."

STUDENT UNION PLANS ACTIVITIES

Homecoming parade and dance, Back to School Bash, Turnabout, pep rallies . . . the list goes on and on. These are just some of the many activities that were planned by the Student Union. What is Student Union? According to junior member James VanOsdol, "Student Union is the entertainment branch of student government. We're the smile producers in this school, we plan rip-roarin' fun activities that the kids just love. It's a lot of laughs and good times being involved in Union."

Throughout the past years, the number of members involved in Student Union has increased greatly. Who ever believed that group of 80 would become 106? Yet all the members worked hard and worked well together and the outcome was simply amazing. The officers included President Jenni Holt, Vice-President Devra Resnick, Secretary Judy Zemsky, and Treasurer Michele Feinberg. The sponsor was Mrs. Forman. Thanks to all the effort, creativity, and enthusiasm put in by the members of Student Union, the 1985-86 school year was fun, exciting, and one that will always be remembered!

STUDENT SENATE PROVIDES GROUND RULES

"Student Senate plays an important role acting on behalf of the students and preserving the rights of students. I think it's great because one can find out what's really going on and do something about it," stated junior Mark Gussin, secretary and treasurer of Student Senate. He, along with President Dean Marinakis and Vice-President Mike Phillips, made up the club's officers.

The 30 member club was active and involved with various activities. They attended regional conferences, and sent representatives to sit in on board of education meetings as well as EPAC meetings. In addition, they were the sponsors of "Meet the Board," and participated in the student appeals board. When asked for his opinion of Student Senate, sponsor Mr. J.A. Sweeney replied, "I feel that I am associated with the most exciting activity in the school."

ECC COORDINATES GOVERNMENT

Whenever new ideas came up for all-school events, such as fundraisers, E.C.C. provided a forum to hear those ideas. Whenever conflicts of interest arose between student groups, E.C.C. helped settle the debate. If friction occurred between students and the administration, E.C.C. provided the lubricant to keep Niles West a well-oiled machine. Yes, the Executive Coordinating Council played a pivotal role in communications between all the groups at Niles West. Topics for discussion could have been channeled through the representatives of any of the respective administrative and student governmental groups. Once channeled, these topics were thoroughly discussed and consensus decisions made, usually to the satisfaction of all involved.

STRETCHING THE FACTS

It's a bright sunny spring Friday. Your least favorite class just had a sub and you are in a good mood. You stroll in late to your last class and the teacher hands you a sheet of paper, tells you to take a seat and begin. You look down to see what you've been given and WHAM, your good day goes down the drain. That sheet of paper is questions to an essay test. How in the world are you going to be able to write an essay test on the book you've been reading when you barely know what class you're in? Well, if you know any of the material you're in luck.

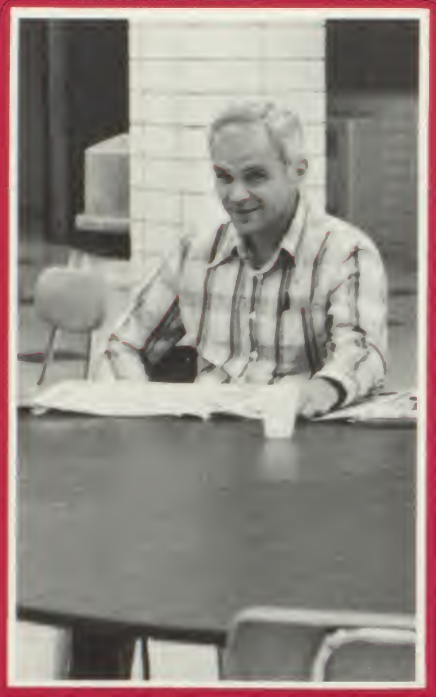
All you need to do is focus on one issue and stretch it out for as long as you possibly can. There is a method to that. First, pick the easiest question, which is usually the longest. Figure out what the teacher is asking. If the answer you come up with is short, don't worry, just stretch it out for a page or two. Be sure to write at least five times how important your answer is in regard to the material. Keep looking up with a serious expression on your face so the teacher will think you're concentrating. Be one of the last ones to hand in your paper. Remember, you had a lot to say so you needed the whole period. Besides, you walked in late!

And be sure to tell your teacher how much fun her class is and to have a nice weekend. If luck is with you, on Monday you will see that not only did you get an "A" on nothing more than a sentence or two repeated again and again, but that you are now an essay test expert. You never have to be afraid again!

Substitute teacher, Mrs. Feldman, smiles devilishly as she hands out a pop quiz. Many teachers, when absent, schedule pop quizzes and tests.

Mr. Gaut makes an unnoticed from the cafeteria to get a can of pop. He too has become part of the Pepsi generation.

Mr. Hall, chemistry teacher, explains the composition of matter to his students. Several students take chemistry to fulfill the graduation requirement of two science courses.



Mr. Carr takes time out to read the newspaper while supervising the cafeteria. Teachers and students alike can find out whats going on in the cafeteria.

HOMEWORK: A CHORE TO MOST

Whether a freshmen, sophomore, or upperclassman, you all share one thing in common, homework. To some, homework is a daily task, to others, a weekly or even a monthly task, and to a few, it doesn't even come to mind. Why, might you ask, is homework assigned? Is it because the teachers want to keep you up all night, or is it because it's necessary for learning? Whether you do your homework in study hall, the cafeteria, or even at home, it is just something that has to be done.

At times homework is frustrating, but it helps with the understanding the material that is being studied.

Mr. Flynn poses for a picture with senior Steven Frankel in the English Resource Center. The English Resource Center is a great place to study.

UNANNOUNCED DISASTER

Always be prepared for the unexpected when walking into a classroom. Sometimes teachers can be mysterious and you never know what they'll do next. Take the unannounced quiz, for example. What could be worse? It happens all the time. The day seems to be going wonderfully as you stroll into class, slide into your chair, and kick up your feet. Suddenly you're startled and jump a mile high as a quiz is announced! Why weren't you informed, or even warned? Good question! Through experience, students have learned to suspect an unannounced quiz from the look on the teacher's face or the tone of their voice. The best way to stay on top is to listen carefully, study, and ALWAYS be prepared!

COMPUTER POPULARITY: NO ERROR

Since the mid- 70's, computers have been gaining popularity with the American public. The computer population at Niles West has almost tripled in the last four years. Nowadays, computers do all our work, from balancing our checkbooks to counting our calories. In general, the average American has a little silicon chip doing all his thinking. "Computers are fine to a point. But when they start to rule the world somebody ought to pull the plug on them and go back to using the abacus as a counting machine," said Junior Chris Larkin. However, without computers where would we be now? Sophomore Ann Fisher explained. "Computers help me a lot with my typing skills and my homework. I sure am glad I bought one."

Engl[illegible]alks with a student in [illegible]puters can be a big help [illegible] writing an English paper, and Ms. Magee has made sure that Niles West has the proper facilities to use.

Mr. Patrick Savage finds the time to answer questions in his computer class. These students are learning the fundamentals of working the computer so that they can operate the machine on their own.

Mr. Benson, the computer center operator, often prepares the programs so that students can use the computers. Sometimes when the programs break down, Mr. Benson gives a little human assistance.

Junior Todd Kassel stops off at his locker to pick up some books. Unlike freshmen, upperclassmen do not like carrying a heavy load of books around all day long.

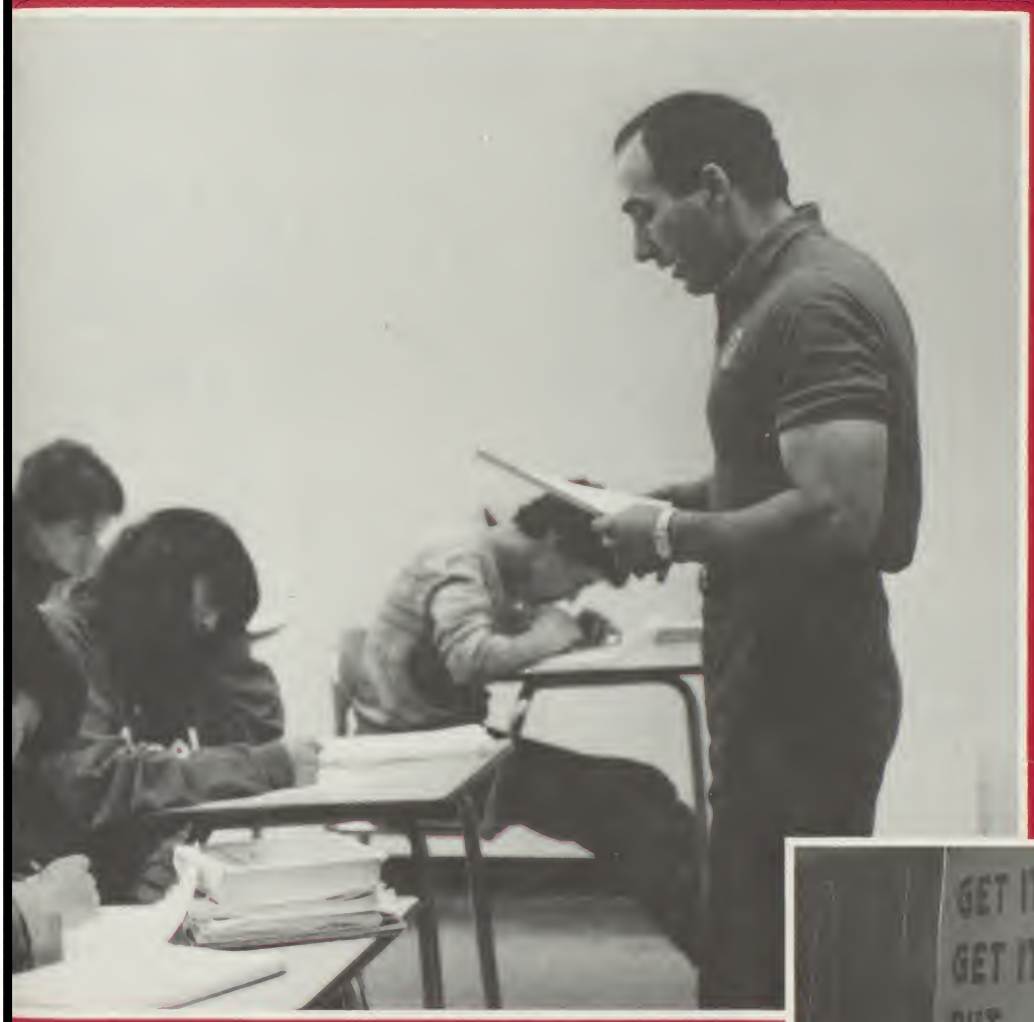
HERE'S THE LATEST SCOOP!

During mods 11-13, the News Writing class, often referred to as "cubbies" worked hard to improve their journalism skills. The class was composed of freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors. They all had one goal in mind- to become full fledged reporters.

As a prerequisite for newspaper production, News Writing students learned to develop a "nose for news" by covering all aspects of school life. "Remember to feature the feature," journalism adviser Jerome Orr would say as he sent his class off to cover their beats.

The class learned the basics of writing and effective news lead and worked its way up to news, features, sports and editorial stories. One may think that journalism writing is easy, but a lot of time and effort goes into each article. Interviewing and covering all sides to the story are vital components to a journalist's article. A journalist learns very fast the old saying there's two or more sides to every story. No writer wants to be sued for not covering all the facts. Even with all this in mind, junior Elliott Baretz enjoyed the class. "I have always wanted to learn how to write for a newspaper. The News Writing class has improved my writing skills tremendously."



Mathematics Teacher Mr. Capitani reveals the answer to the tough algebra problem that the class missed on an exam.

THE DEVIL-IN-WEST

Students who always sigh because they think they have to fill another English requirement with another boring grammar class should stop their sighs and look into an exciting class called "Devil in Literature". The class taught by Jean Derichs, was much more that a literature class. Derichs described it as the closest thing to a philosophy class at Niles West.

Research reports on the supernatural and cults were written. There were also many in class activities. The students created their own hell, in writing. As a class they discussed the change in attitude about the devil throughout the ages. They also disscussed the origin of evil. They read many books dealing with the devil. "Inferno" by Dante, "Mysterious Stranger" by Twain, "Childhood's End", by Arther Clarke, "Exorcist" by William Blatty, and "Dr. Faustus" by Marlow are some titles of books read. Derichs added another reason the class was so stimulating, "I like it because I get some of the most interesting students in the class. I find that they look at the ordinary in a most *un*ordinary way."

Biology teacher James Stroad works after classroom hours to prepare for his classes. Mr. Stroad has had many of his past students come back to tell of their great successes in the sciences, claiming they owe their interests to him.

SMOOTH TALKERS

Some took the course for "an easy 'A'," others took it because they suffered from the common phobia of speaking in front of a group. But no matter what their motive, all who enrolled in the semester long public speaking course learned a great deal from it.

The class started off with the students reading small prepared statements from their seats in order to get comfortable with the group. A few weeks later, after learning the proper structure, the students began to make mini-speeches standing before the group. After making a few "minies," students made major speeches on assigned topics and even on topics of their choosing. Finally, at the end of the semester, students were asked to make impromptu speeches. To those who took the course, public speaking proved more than just a class, it proved to be an experience that would help them get through social situations for the rest of their lives.

Mrs. Geri Nash ponders while she prepares the lessons for her English classes.

STUDY AREAS

There are many different study areas of Niles West. Various students were asked of their favorite spot and these were some answers.

The cafeteria seemed to be the most popular study area of the school. But almost everyone agrees it is one of the hardest places to concentrate. "Food is the main attraction to studying in the cafe." according to Junior Gina Lee.

For band members the band wing and main room is the best spot. Besides being able to practice music, there are other reasons for using the room. Senior Jill Zabo said, "I enjoy the quiet atmosphere, studying by the window for fresh air and being with my friends." A couch and chairs in the band wing also make studying more comfortable.

Senior Paula Krone voiced the opinion of many newspaper and yearbook staff members. "I like working in the Westword office because it feels like I'm at home. There is unlimited amounts of paper, pens and of course a phone."

Some of the more unusual spots for studying were, "In the hall between classes" according to Sophomore Bryan Mittleman, "At my desk during the test." said Senior Jim King, and Junior David Bloom says "I don't study."

Mr. Feick hands back papers to his business class Computers are becoming more and more part of the business world.

Mr. Geissman leans back and takes a rest in between classes. Like students, teachers are thankful for the five minute break.

AND SECRETARIES WORK AS ONE

THE WORK NEVER ENDS!

For the secretaries at Niles West, the work is never done! Whether it be paper work or even a simple phone call, these devoted ladies get the job done with speed and accuracy. All day long, they have to deal with screaming parents, complaining students, crabby teachers or demanding directors. Without the understanding of the ladies, our school would not function on a smooth level.

NEW CHALLENGES

Dr. Donald Ring has completed his second year as principal at Niles West. When asked of his evaluation of the school and of his thoughts and plans on Niles West, he replied, "Each day brings new challenge and rewards. I continue to enjoy the friendship and spirit of our students. I would like to maintain an excellent curriculum given our declining enrollment, also to improve school spirit next year." He also added that he enjoys being principal and that the students are very courteous and work hard.

BOARD RAISED WITH . . .

PROBLEMS!

The District 219 Board of Education consists of a six member team that works out potential problems in the schools. One problem that the board is working on is the change of the graduation requirements by raising the number of credits necessary to graduate, rather than the traditional thirty- six. Another important issue concerns that of discipline. The Board wants to change punishments for violations, such as suspension. Lastly to dispute on wheter or not to make up the days lost from the strike. Students were able to learn of and discuss these and other important issues with the Board at the "Meet the Board" session held in October.

PROVIDERS FOR STUDENT SERVICES

At Niles West many people other than teachers are instrumental in keeping the school on its feet. From Mrs. Bower in the guidance office to Mrs. Albanese in the registrar's office, Niles West is always prepared to get the days work done.

When seeking information in the Library or Annex help is never far away. The media staff is always ready to give assistance wherever it be needed.

When copies are needed, Mr. Mitz is the man to see for all duplicating services. Whether its a single copy or several hundred, whether its printed on white or colored paper, Mr. Mitz makes it all happen.

If its solving an attendance problem or clearing a computer problem, the many people behind the scenes at Niles West are always willing to help.

SAFETY AND SECURITY

The "home of the Indians" is also the home of many students with aches, pains and fevers. Always willing to try to make the student feel better, the school's nurses are to be commended for doing a fine job. After taking your temperature, whether they send you home, excuse you from gym or just let you lie down for a little while, you can count on the nurses to take care of you.

When leaving the nurses office, you may want to clear up your unexcused absence with the dean. Although most people, including the deans, feel that the less one is in the deans' office the better, Niles West is lucky to have three fine deans and their secretaries doing a professional job of what needs to be done.

Another group of people that deserve credit for doing a job that needs to be done is the security guards. When trouble arises, the security guards act quickly and efficiently to return everything back to normal, and to maintain a calm and studious atmosphere.

Ren, Jen, Jen, and La -
The time has been so short but the memories so great. Summer of 85 was when it all began, waiting for La at the pool was always the main plan. The family truckster was ready and roaring the nights at NU Beach were never boring. Beach Men and Hotel California stuck in our minds these are just a few of the times. There's not enough room to write the rest. We love you guys - you're The Best!!!
Love

A CELEBRATION OF . . . .

Memories. During the Homecoming Dance seniors Diane Rubenstein and Debbie Schugall discuss their plans for after the dance.

The Silver Celebration,
Is coming to its finish.
Dedication and memories which will never deminish.
Through the years, the faces have changed,
New hair-do's and clothing,
And classrooms rearranged,
Working towards goals and dreams coming true,
But along with the happiness their was sadness, too.
The Spectrum, which is now 25 years old,
Has received its "Silver."
And is striving for "Gold!"

Pride. An underwater aqua-shot proves thumbs up by senior captain Torrey Browder, and Allan Dassow.

Spirit. The spirit of Niles West shines in the cheerleader's "spirit-doll."

[illegible] two students sit on the lawn undisturbed.

REALITY

The Best Days of Our Lives,
Or so they say-
"Live not for each second,
But for each and every day."

I find it hard to cope,
With the things life has in store
It's hard growing up
When you don't know what your for

Our sun is finally setting
Our times together are few
It's time to start our lives again
Forget the old and look to the new

It all seems like a dream
Those years of learning life,
We must now go out on our own
Taking the happiness and taking the strife,

Most of will succeed,
But some of us will fall
So wish me luck in this time-
And good times through it all.
By Debbie Freed '86

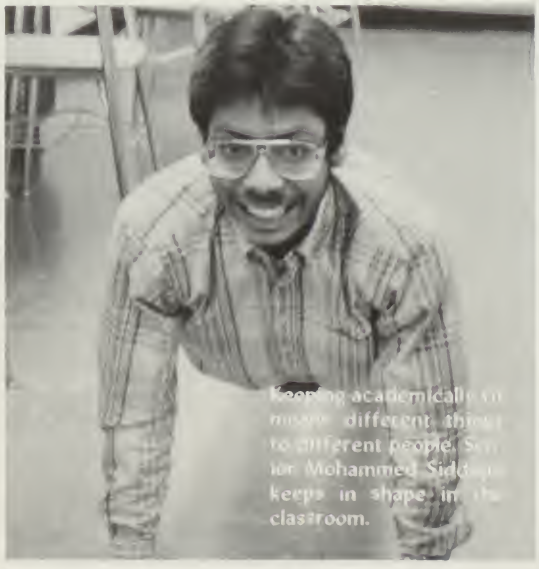
With the installation of a machine, drinks have come to the cafe.



Keeping academically in shape means different things to different people. Senior Mohammed Siddiqui keeps in shape in the classroom.

thank You
